Rapid Japanese Advance Threatens To Isolate China

Invaders Reach Lashio In Sensational Attempt To Seize Rail Terminus

Chinese High Command
Admits Situation Is Serious, but Declares
China Will Not Give Up

By SPENCER MOOSA
CHUNGKING, China, April 29 (P)—The outskirts of Lashio, eastern terminus of the Mandalay-Lashio railway and teeming area of Chinese truck drivers who for three years have kept traffic moving over the Burma road, have been reached by a Japanese spearhead which thrust with a lightning stroke through the mountainous Shan states, the Chinese announced tonight.

Still another dire menace to the vital feeder line to China was apparent, with the Japanese brushing around Chinese flanks toward Hsipaw, forty miles southwest of Lashio.

So grave was the threat to the entire Chinese position as a result of this all but completed severance of the famed Burma road, that the Chinese command felt compelled to assure the world that it had no intention of giving up the fight.

Situation Serious
"It is obvious," said the command, "that the Japanese occupation of Hsipaw will have serious consequences."

New Lashio, it added, was reached Tuesday morning. (New Lashio is believed to be a new part of the old town, grown up rapidly since 1938 when the Burma road was opened.)

The Japanese had burst through the mountains with dazzling speed, for only this morning reports in Chungking had placed them at Mansam, fifty miles due south.

Obviously they had pushed forward their tanks and troops with breakneck abandon in a supreme effort to beat the monsoon, the westerly rains which already are starting and which in two weeks will turn Burma's lowlands into quagmires.

100,000 Japs in Action
Yesterday the column, stemming out from an expeditionary force said to number 100,000 men, was reported 100 miles from Lashio.

The Japanese apparently were directing their immediate attention to this front toward Mongyai, about thirty-five miles below Lashio. At Mongyai, the invaders would find two roads leading to the railroad between Lashio and Mandalay which, in turn, connects with the mountainous Burma Road at Lashio.

These secondary roads may have been turned up by the defenders by now, however.

The Chinese were reported forming a front just south of a line running east and west from Mongyai to Hsipaw, with the railroad at their backs.

State Income Tax Hearing Goal Set

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 29 (P)—State income tax receipts moved closer to the $8,440,000 goal today, with $101,269 realized from 3,500 latest returns bringing the yield to $3,571,714.

About 20,000 more returns are yet to be tabulated. When this task is completed next week, State Comptroller J. Millard Tawes will know how much is still owed in installment payments and will be able to tell the total yield. He expects it to exceed the $8,440,000 goal.

Col. Gray Says Railway Service Will Do Fine Job for U. S. Army

CHICAGO, April 29 (P)—The new commander of the military railway service, Col. Carl R. Gray, Jr., declared today that "we're going to do a crackerjack job of railroading for the American army in the world wide theaters of war."

Now in training stages, the service is drawing from the nation's rail system operating executives, maintenance experts, mechanical superintendents and workmen.

OBJECTOR IN 2 WARS

Harold Studley Gray, 47, of Saline, Mich., refused to fight in World War I and is determined to repeat his stand because of "religious scruples" in the present war. He has so notified the Attorney General of the United States. Gray, a Harvard graduate, spent over a year in various Federal prisons during World War I before he was released on September 5, 1919.

More American Men and Guns Reach Australia

But Curtin Says Japanese
Invasion Is Still a Grave
Threat

By TOM YARBROUGH
CANBERRA, Australia, April 29 (P)—Australia's leaders gave their continent the heartening news today that many more United States troops, tanks, planes and guns have reached these shores, but warned the people earnestly that the threat of Japanese invasion remains very real.

Prime Minister John Curtin and Air Minister Arthur S. Drakeford, in parliamentary speeches, said frankly that Allied air blows had not yet loosened the Japanese grip on the islands to the north, northeast and west, and that these were being reinforced with sinister purpose.

Dispatches from an Allied base said a full-scale Japanese attack on Port Moresby, Australian outpost on New Guinea to the north was likely.

Tokyo broadcasts yesterday reported the occupation, as of April 19, of "all strategically important bases" on the northern shore of Dutch New Guinea and in the Molucca islands to the west.

Raid Air Drome at Lae
United States fliers raided the airfield at Lae again yesterday, destroying an ammunition dump, and fought off an attack on the Allied airfield at Port Moresby.

Telling of the newest contingent of the A. E. F., the prime minister said: "Strong additional United States reinforcements, which are well equipped and which include important technical units, have arrived."

Americans Sink Japanese Vessel In Manila Bay

Also Silence Gun Batteries in Cavite and Bataan

By WILLIAM F. FRYE
WASHINGTON, April 29 (P)—The Manila Bay forts, blasting at the Japanese with heavy artillery fire, sank an enemy ship in the bay and silenced some of the gun batteries in Cavite and Bataan, the War department reported today.

A communique containing the department's first report on the Philippines in two days, said also that the forts, replying to heavy shelling from the Japanese guns, broke up troop concentrations on both sides of the bay.

The ship, an armed vessel, was described in a report from General Douglas MacArthur headquarters in Australia as of medium size.

Fighting in Panay

In Panay, American and Filipino troops still were resisting fiercely the enemy drive for control of that rich central island. Fighting was reported in the vicinity of San Remigio, in the west coast province of Antique, and near Alibuman, just north of Lambunao.

Japanese forces in Panay have been concentrated largely in the ports and in the coastal areas, the communique said, and there has been a noticeable increase in enemy naval strength off the waters of Panay and other islands in the central Visayan group.

These factors, plus the continuing fighting on Cebu and the recently reported aerial reconnaissance of the island of Negros, appeared to be part of a concerted Japanese drive to break up inter-island communications and to find and destroy any remaining air fields in the islands which might be used by American planes.

Luzon Not Subjugated
The communique disclosed also that the Japanese had been unable to stamp out resistance on the main island of Luzon, despite the collapse of large-scale opposition with the fall of Bataan.

Although Corregidor and the other island forces at the entrance to Manila Bay have been shelled heavily by Japanese guns in Cavite and Bataan, the department reported that the intensity of air attacks had diminished recently, most of the raids on the last two days being made by dive bombers.

New Price Order To Be Enforced By Md. Officers

Those Who Do Not Comply
Will Face Trouble,
McCormick Says

BALTIMORE, April 29 (P)—Administration in Maryland of the general price fixing order was planned at a meeting of the OPA regional staff today and Leo H. McCormick, acting director, directed that "reasonableness, understanding and courtesy" mark enforcement of the order in this state.

"It is my emphatic belief," he told his staff, "that the citizens of Maryland are going to comply gladly with the provisions of the new order because of the salutary effect their compliance will have on conserving of goods and promotion of the war effort."

"We are going to carry to all parts of the state a full explanation of the order and methods by which it will be applied."

Will Enforce Orders
"To protect the great majority we know will comply, the enforcement facilities of this office will be brought to bear fully upon the few who might choose wilfully not to comply."

Various aspects of the order were discussed by Clifford Snider, acting legal aide and by Lloyd G. Reynolds, regional price executive.

Snider and McCormick emphasized they believed the consumer would be the real enforcement officer. They said it would be the consumers who would note any charges above the March ceilings. Complaints, they said, should be given to the local rationing boards which now would become the war price and rationing board. These boards, McCormick said, would be given supplemental aid by OPA staff men to handle the complaints.

CANADA'S ARMY CHIEF IN ENGLAND

The Commander in Chief of Canadian forces in Great Britain, Gen. Andrew G. L. McNaughton, wears goggles as he rides in a Bren carrier while taking part in the maneuvers of a Canadian armored division. With a two-to-one approval of an overseas draft by Canada's voters, McNaughton will probably be joined soon by more Canadian forces.

NAZI NAVAL BASES BOMBED BY BRITISH

By DREW MIDDLETON

LONDON, April 29 (P)—Trondheim and Kiel, important bases for the menacing Nazi naval power, were left blasted and burned today by heavy RAF assaults as Britain relentlessly prosecuted the fiercest air offensive of the war.

Nine British bombers were lost on the overnight raids, which included attacks on low-country airfields and a power plant at Ghent, Belgium. (The Germans claimed the toll was twenty-five.)

The RAF's figure raised its April bomber losses to 137, but the offensive score included a three-hour raid on Trondheim Monday night, four nights of deadly assault which all but erased from the map the German Baltic port and factory town of Rostock, and incessant day and night blows against points along the Nazi "invasion coast."

Trondheim Bombed
Last night's raid on Trondheim, second in succession, emphasized the British concern over the presence in that Norwegian port of the German super-battleship Tirpitz and several other powerful warships on the flank of the vital supply route to Murmansk, Russia.

The air ministry told of great fires started at Kiel, but was hesitant to claim great damage at Trondheim.

British quarters expressed belief that the destruction of shore supplies and facilities at Trondheim and Kiel would either hold the Nazis in port or drive them out to sea ill-equipped for the challenge of the allied navies.

This was in line with the British air policy as announced to a cheering House of Commons today by Sir Archibald Sinclair, air secretary.

"To destroy the enemy capacity to make war."

How that policy had been followed was shown in the official figures

Federal Employees Told To Reduce Cars Used To Take Them To Work

WASHINGTON, April 29 (P)—Uncle Sam's employees were told today to reduce "substantially" the number of automobiles necessary to take them to and from their work.

And in the same breath, the government ordered taxicab owners to quit performing "non-essential services" for Mr. and Mrs. America, stop "cruising," encourage multiple riding and other measures to obtain the maximum efficiency from each cab.

Need Called Imperative
The directive to federal department and agency heads was issued by President Roosevelt who asserted that "it is imperative that we extend as long as possible that period of time in which we can count on private transportation of factory and office workers."

"I am also sending a copy of this letter to the council of state gov-

Johnstown Strike Voted Off by CIO Organizing Group

Two-Day-Old Walkout Is Terminated by Unanimous Decision

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., April 29 (P)—A two-day-old walkout of CIO coke oven workers at the Bethlehem Steel Company's Cambria works, affecting between 1,200 and 5,000 men, ended tonight.

The striking CIO Steel Workers Organizing committee members voted unanimously to return to their jobs when they were assured their demands for a twelve and one-half cents an hour wage adjustment would be referred to the War Labor Board "with priority over all other cases for an immediate decision."

James B. Gent, sub-national director of the union, and Harry E. Roullis, labor consultant for the War Production Board, gave the assurance in a joint statement. Gent said the strike was unauthorized but that it had the union's support.

Demand Wage Increases

The workers, whose pay ranges upward from a minimum of seventy-two and one-half cents an hour, claimed they have tried for eleven months to get an increase which would make their rate similar to that in other mills.

Even before the 11 p. m. (Eastern War Time) time set for the men to go back, some began arriving at the plant gates.

The walkout was one of the most serious in the steel industry since the Japanese attacked Pearl Harbor last December.

Sidney D. Evans, company representative, estimated the shutdown had caused an "irreparable loss" of 3,000 tons of steel ingots in the blast furnaces. He said the men were returning at the same rate of pay but without loss of seniority, with the "whole question of wages" to go before the Labor Board.

The union has another case against Bethlehem and other "Little Steel" companies pending before the War Labor Board in which it is demanding a flat increase of $1 a day with a union shop agreement.

Action Pleases Roullis

Roullis expressed satisfaction at the quick manner in which work was resumed at the mills, saying it represented "an example of the speed with which the War Production Board works." The first walkout occurred on the morning shift yesterday. Today the union estimated 5,000 men were out, the comm. (Continued on Page 2, Col. 2)

Russian Armies Attacking Nazi Army Near Kursk

Reds Seeking To Destroy
Base for Hitler's
Summer Drive

By WILLIAM B. KING

LONDON, April 29 (P)—The Red armies were reported strongly attacking tonight above and below Kursk, a half-way house and major supply depot for the German line from the lower Moscow front south to the sea of Azov.

Soviet dispatches reported that Russian troops had reached Norosny, northwest of Kursk on the road to Orel, and were advancing near Belgorod some fifty miles above Kharkov and about seventy miles south of Kursk, seeking to envelop and destroy that key base in Hitler's summer offensive plans.

Heavy fighting also was reported about Izum, on the Donets river eighty miles southeast of Kharkov.

Attempt To Smash Bases

All this, shifting of Russian offensive action southward to areas for some time hitherto quiescent appeared to be a major attempt to smash the bases from which the Nazis had intended to launch the heaviest of their projected attacks.

It was accompanied by word from Kubyshchev, the alternate Russian capital, that in four days of action Russian troops had advanced forty-five miles and had crossed an important river. This river was not further identified, but there were some indications that it was the Oka, near Orel.

Violent Action Reported

Orel is about 200 miles below Moscow. Then on the major fighting line running south come Kursk and Kharkov, and the general picture indicated by all reports was one of violent action in this vast sub-theater, where Hitler's flank (Continued on Page 2, Col. 3)

Three Proposals To End War Said To Have Been Made within Six Weeks

French News Agency Gives Terms upon Which Fuehrer Will Accept Peace; Ask Much and Offer Little; Demand Control of French, Dutch and Belgian Colonies

LONDON, April 29 (P)—The A.F.I., independent French news agency, reported without qualification tonight that Germany had made three peace proposals to Britain within the last six weeks.

The agency said the proposals were similar; that the first was made through Turkey, the second through Switzerland and the third through Sweden.

Authoritative British sources disclaimed knowledge of any such overtures.

RECALL HITLER'S SPEECH

(Adolf Hitler in his Sunday speech made remarks interpreted by some observers as hints at a "peace offensive" directed toward Britain, particularly when he tried to suggest that it would be the U. S. or Russia, not Germany, that would destroy Britain.)

The French agency said that Germany, seeking a free hand to concentrate on the eastern front, had submitted a nine-page "Goering memorandum" to Britain. That memorandum was said to have been the basis for all three "feelers."

Its points were reported to include:

- Wants "New Order"
 - 1. Britain and the United States to recognize German control in Europe. Germany being prepared to consider any Anglo-Saxon suggestions for application of the "new order" on the continent.
 - 2. Germany to annex such Russian territories as she considered necessary to her "living space."
 - 3. Germany to control virtually all of the French, Dutch and Belgian Colonial possessions.
- If the Allied powers accepted those fundamental conditions, Germany would undertake the following, according to the French agency's outline:
- Would Recognize Empire
 - 1. To recognize the British Empire in its present form.
 - 2. To recognize "control" of Latin America by the United States "both in political and economic spheres."
 - 3. To collaborate in setting up a system of trade between the three "empires"—Germany, Britain and America's.
- The last paragraph of this so-called Goering memorandum was reported to have referred to assistance which Germany would be prepared to give the allies in order that they might "drive Japan back to her natural limits."

Lieut. Bulkeley Called Bravest Man in Service

Torpedoes Enemy Ships Night and Day and Gets Little Sleep

WASHINGTON, April 29 (P)—One of the last civilians to run the Japanese blockade through the Philippines and down to Australia—A veteran of the terrible bombing of Cavite, the siege of Bataan and various shelling of Cebu—pondered a wide acquaintance with brave men today and concluded that Lieutenant John D. Bulkeley of the navy's Philippine torpedo boat squadron led all the rest.

Bulkeley, who has repeatedly torpedoed Japanese warships and heavily protected transports, was described by John T. McCabe, 40, torpedoboot technician of Grosset Point, Mich., in these words:

"He's either a man without a nerve in his body or he's crazy, or a combination of both."

"The man doesn't know fear," added McCabe. "He not only goes out on his own boat, but as long as he can stay awake he goes out on other boats while his own crew is taking a rest."

McCabe said that as the war progressed, Bulkeley, "whose men would follow him anywhere in the world," had grown a tremendous black beard which he declined to cut off because he thought it was lucky.

Official communiques have credited Bulkeley's squadron of swift sea fighters with torpedoing two Jap cargo ships in January, a warship of unidentified type in February, and a light cruiser in April. The squadron has been on almost constant patrol since the war started.

Price Freeze Plan Both Praised And Criticized by U. S. Leaders

By CLAUDE A. JAGGER
NEW YORK, April 29 (P)—The government's general price freeze order—greatest economic control effort ever undertaken in America—won praise from many business and financial leaders throughout the country today as a step in the right direction.

Many retailers, however, insisted that freezing both wholesale and retail prices as they existed in March failed to take into account faster advances in many wholesale prices, and that unless adjustments were made, retailers profit margins would disappear and many would be forced to the wall.

Other critics were that the general anti-inflation program left wages subject only to voluntary stabilization, and permitted further substantial advances in farm prices, pending new and uncertain legislation.

Among comments of labor leaders were:

Labor Leaders Comment
Daniel J. Tobin, president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters (AFL), at Indianapolis:

"The president will not be able to stabilize the necessities of life to protect us x x x. Until we are satisfied that it can be done, labor will oppose any such thing as a standard wage."

Lucy Randolph Mason, public relations director of the CIO in the south:

"Labor approves freezing of prices and freezing of profits. When this is done wage freezing will not be necessary. Labor's demands for (Continued on Page 2, Col. 2)

New Discovery In Diet Reported At Johns Hopkins

Sheds Light on Problem of Human Fertility,
Doctors Say

By ALTON L. BLAKESLEE
BALTIMORE, April 29 (AP)—A significant discovery in diet throwing new light on the problem of human fertility was reported today by a team of Johns Hopkins Hospital research workers.

It indicates through human experiments that arginine—one of the amino acids, the building blocks of all animal tissues—must be supplied in the diet, and that without it the reproductive system cannot maintain itself. This suggests that some cases of human infertility might be due to inadequate diet, or faulty utilization of food.

23 Amino Acids Known
Twenty-three amino acids are known. All are needed to form cells. The body can make some out of simpler substances, but others must be supplied in the diet.

When humans were fed on a diet deficient in arginine, their bodies apparently took arginine from plasma in the reproductive system, using it to form other body tissues. When arginine was restored to their diet, they quickly returned to normal.

Experiments with rats indicate nine of the twenty-three amino acids are essential in food, but the Hopkins workers, headed by Dr. Anthony A. Albanese of the Harriet Lane Home, are the first to experiment directly with humans with diets deficient in one or another of these vital building blocks.

The rat work had indicated that arginine was not essential in food. The arginine finding thus marks an important new advance in knowledge of basic human diet. The workers so far have found that two of the amino acids, tryptophane and lysine, are also essential in human food, bearing out the findings in rat experiments.

Meat proteins contain all twenty-three amino acids. This research is directed toward finding more efficient ways of combining vegetables, which supply amino acids in varying degree, for an adequate diet.

Mystery Explained
A Russian worker, Stefkoff, studying victims of the famine of 1923, Dr. Albanese said, noted "the unfavorable effects of dietary deficiency on the reproductive system, but there was no indication as to what factor might be responsible." The arginine finding helps explain it.

"For years," he added, "it has been known as the Rhine salmon travel upstream, their muscles waste away. The muscle cells break down as arginine is taken away and stored in the reproductive system for spawning. The reverse of that process apparently occurred in the human beings fed on a diet deficient in arginine."

The equipment position has materially improved.

"In position to acceleration of local production of munitions, supplies of tanks and guns are arriving from overseas in increasing numbers, and quantities of vital war equipment have been received from ships originally destined for the Dutch East Indies."

Air Bases Reinforced
Supplies of modern United States aircraft have made possible reinforcement of our northern air bases, resulting in constant raiding of the Japanese bases in New Guinea, New Britain and Timor."

Curtin noted the offensive possibilities pointed up by United States Brigadier General Ralph Royce's aerial today into the Philippines and said General Douglas MacArthur's new directive "provides that the combined resources of our Allies and ourselves be devoted to the protection of the military regions of Australia as bases for future offensive action against Japan."

"If Australia is not held, all talk of using it as a springboard for an offensive becomes meaningless. The task that confronts us is the most formidable that the nation has ever faced."

New Price

"would funnel" the various complaints to the regional office where the legal department would study reports of violations for possible punitive action.

McCormick said he had received pledges today from trade associations and from county and state officials of their cooperation in the price fixing program. Many, he said, had offered their facilities to aid the price fixing administration.

He promised the OPA regional office would "realize it is playing one of the most important roles on the home front" and would do the job "as conscientiously but as thoroughly as it can."

Help for Rotarians

NEBRASKA CITY, Neb., April 29 (AP)—There'll be no more struggling with those high notes in the national anthem for Nebraska City Rotary Club members. After hearing the club try it, Miss Ruth Freiss, high school music instructor, went home and wrote an arrangement in a lower key. It'll be used henceforth.

Union Organizers Hiring Girls To Bring in Members

CIO and AFL Leaders
Pleased with Novel
Experiment

ALTON, Ill., April 29 (AP)—Beauty is the latest thing in union organizing. It's a charming technique.

Both the AFL and the CIO are using it in conducting campaigns for members among the 8,000 production employees of the Western Cartridge Company.

The CIO has a "powder puff brigade" of fifteen attractive girls, trim in slacks who are assisting in the organization drive. The AFL has a bevy of "glamour girls" to compete for the attention of the plant workers.

Both camps take credit for introducing feminine fascination in union organization. So far the rival groups of charmers have got along peacefully and there has been no hair-pulling or other clash.

The "powder puff brigade" and the "glamour girls" each go into action about once a week, taking stations at the plant gates to pass out leaflets and membership cards. Union leaders are searching their ranks, in the manner of Hollywood talent scouts, for new stars to feature.

"We had a beauty at one of the gates a few days ago," a union leader said gleefully. "The men greeted her with low whistles, and stood in line to meet her. Some of them came back a second time."

The next thing you know, it'll take a beauty queen to get a job as a union organizer.

wage increases have been based on huge profits of industry."

Comments of farm leaders included these:

Farm Leaders Give Views
"Agriculture would be glad to comply with price fixing if at the same time an equitable price with farm products is placed on industrial products and wages. x x x the farm bureau is opposed to a ceiling on farm prices at 100 percent of parity."

Louis G. Tabor, past master of the national grange.

"The vast price freezing program will be successful only by treating labor, agriculture, and industry exactly alike on questions of wages, prices and profits."

Meanwhile, there was widespread expression of hope that inequities would be adjusted, and that the system would be made to work.

Committee Ready To Act on Hour And Profits Bill

Showdown, Delayed Temporarily, May Be Reached Today

WASHINGTON, April 29 (AP)—A showdown in the House Naval committee on legislation to limit war profits and alter the forty-hour week law was deferred today by a technicality but members predicted that a decision on the controversial subject would be reached tomorrow.

As the committee put off action on a newly-redrafted bill by Representative Vinson (D-Ga.) there were these other developments on the labor-profit front:

1. President Roosevelt signed the $19,151,597.010 war appropriation bill which carried a rider providing for the renegotiation of any war contracts deemed to permit excessive profits.

2. Presidents Philip Murray of the CIO and William Green of the AFL agreed on procedure for settling union jurisdictional disputes.

3. Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.) called for these additions to the president's living cost program: wage ceilings by law, compulsory savings for war bond purposes, and maximum non-defense economies.

Consideration of the Vinson bill was halted when Rep. Bates (R-Mass.) pointed out that the committee was not sitting legally because the House itself was in session. (Under Parliamentary rules, committees cannot meet at such times unless specific permission by the House.) Bates explained his point of order by saying he wanted to study details of Vinson's latest profit-limitation formula.

The Murray-Green agreement was disclosed by Chairman William H. Davis of the War Labor Board, who explained that all jurisdictional questions in cases coming before the WLB would be referred to its four labor members.

"If any particular dispute cannot be settled by the labor members," Davis continued, "Mr. Murray and Mr. Green will be so notified and they will thereupon promptly appoint a group or individuals to make a final and binding determination of the dispute."

7 Army Fliers Killed in Crash Bomber and Pursuit Plane Collide West of Orlando, Fla.

ORLANDO, Fla., April 29 (AP)—Seven army fliers were killed today when a bomber and a pursuit plane collided in midair about nine miles west of here.

The dead were announced by Colonel Thomas S. Voss, commander of the Orlando air base, as:

Second Lieut. Ernest W. Robertson of Eugene, Oregon.
Second Lieut. Joseph S. Smith of Yakum, Texas.
Second Lieut. Richard R. Carnevale of Columbus, Ohio.
Private M. C. Brown of Detroit, Mich.

Private L. A. Gerhart of Wernersville, Pa.
Private W. E. Wilm of Holland, Mich.

Second Lieut. Robert S. Boyce of Chillicothe, Ohio, pilot of the pursuit ship.

The bomber, carrying the crew of six, was attached to MacDill field at Tampa and the pursuit plane was from the Orlando air base.

Both ships burned following the collision, the wreckage of the bomber falling into an orange grove and the pursuit plane coming to earth two miles away.

O'Connor and Reckord Invited to Field Day

COLLEGE PARK, Md., April 29 (AP)—Governor O'Connor, Maj. Gen. Milton A. Reckord, and other distinguished guests have been invited to attend the annual Maryland military field day exercises to be given tomorrow afternoon by the reserve officers training corps of the University of Maryland.

A full dress field drill will include competition by all companies, followed by group contests with four squads representing each of the battalions, and 12 platoons representing each company.

In addition, an individual competition between 36 men representing all platoons will be conducted.

Exhibitions by outside groups, including a military police battalion from Fort Myer, Va., officers of the chemistry warfare service school now located at the university, and the Washington provisional brigade, also are programmed.

Gordon "Scottie" Murray, 22, sergeant-pilot with the Royal Canadian Air Force, was killed in action over Malta, according to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Murray of Brooklyn, N. Y. The flier is credited with shooting down four Germans in the battle which cost him his life.

Motorists To Get Gasoline According To Their Needs

WASHINGTON, April 29 (AP)—When card rationing of gasoline starts in the Eastern seaboard area May 15, motorists will be given gas according to their needs, it was indicated tonight.

Persons necessarily using their automobiles in getting to and from work would receive gasoline according to the distance they live from their jobs.

In his application for a ration card, each motorist will give the nature of his work, the shortest mileage from his home to his place of work or commuting point, say whether he uses his automobile in carrying on his work and the average daily mileage customarily driven in such work, and answer the question: "Are you making every possible effort to reduce this mileage by using public transportation and by 'doubling up' with your neighbors?"

Newsprint Prices Fixed by Henderson

WASHINGTON, April 29 (AP)—Prices for "standard" newsprint will remain at $50 a ton as the result of the maximum price schedule established by OPA. Price Administrator Leon Henderson said today.

The new newsprint ceiling, effective May 11, replaces a temporary order which established the maximum prices at the $50 level.

Henderson said the ceiling would not preclude further discussions between OPA and Canada concerning newsprint mills in the dominion.

Last December these mills asked an increase of $3 a ton in the price of newsprint for export to the United States to become effective April 1.

Henderson said OPA would continue its study of the industry's operations during the first half of this year to determine whether or not the higher price would be justified during the last half of the year.

Storekeeper Will Not Sell Sugar

HAGERSTOWN, Md., April 29 (AP)—The various wartime emergency registrations finally got one rural storekeeper's goat—so he's decided "I won't bother selling sugar."

When the ration board office here told the grocer he'd have to sign up at the High School, the man said "This is too much trouble."

"Yesterday I registered for selective service," he said, "and next week I've got to register as an individual sugar consumer, and it's taking up too much of my time."

Nazi Holiday Off

LONDON, April 29 (AP)—The German radio told farm workers tonight that they must forego their usual holiday Saturday, national labor day, because of a "special situation" caused by an unusually severe winter. The farmers have been working lately on Sundays for the same reason.

Committee Asks Allowances for Many Dependents

Favors Paying for Support of Wives and Children of Soldiers

WASHINGTON, April 29 (AP)—A Senate committee agreed informally today that a proposed scale of allowances for dependents of men in the armed services was necessary but expressed opposition to a request by the federal security agency for flexible authority to supplement such payments in "hardship cases."

Although Federal Security would not administer the regular payments set forth in the measure, the bill provides that appeals for additional allowances be referred to that agency.

Sen. Johnson Protests
The request for flexible authority was made by Geoffrey May of Federal Security who told the committee that from five to fifteen percent of the families or dependents of men of military service age would qualify as "hardship cases" under the measure. Senator Johnson (D-Colo.) protested, however, that there was no top nor bottom limit on such a proposal and expressed doubt that Congress would be willing "to sign any such blank check."

He and Senator Lee (D-Okla.) suggested it might be wiser to raise the entire schedule of uniform allowances contained in the administration approved measure rather than give Federal Security what Johnson called a free hand to set supplementary payments "at one dollar or one thousand dollars a month."

Favor Uniform Schedule.
Spokesmen for the army, navy and selective service who appeared before the committee testified they favored a uniform schedule of payments to be paid by the services individually but had "no objection" to additional federal security payments. They added they would favor increasing the proposed schedule should Congress decide to eliminate the FSA supplements.

The measures, based on expected Congressional approval of a bill now pending in the House which would raise the minimum pay of men in the armed services to $42 monthly, provide for two classes of dependents: class A—wives and children; class B—parents, grandchildren, brothers, and sisters.

Wives and children would receive $20 monthly which would be taken from the pay of enlisted men. To this the government would add $20 for a wife with no child, $30 for a wife and one child, with $10 more for each additional child; $15 if there is no wife but one child; and $20 to a former wife divorced, to whom alimony has been decreed.

Optional with Soldier.
Allowances to the "B" class dependents would be optional with the man in military service. If he already had "A" class dependents, another $5 would be taken from his monthly pay or $25 in all. If not he could pay $20 monthly to his "B" dependents. In addition the government would pay $15 for one dependent parent, $25 for two parents and $5 each for grandchild, brother, sister and additional parent. Class B allowances would be limited to a top of $50 monthly.

Club Seeks To Force Many Now on Relief To Return to Work

EASTON, Md., April 29 (AP)—The Easton Rotary club, disturbed because members contend they are unable to fill labor needs although they claim many persons are drawing unemployment relief checks, voted today to carry their fight to Congress, if necessary, through officers of Rotary International.

Members adopted a resolution demanding that the Maryland State Unemployment Office in Baltimore supply a list of all unemployed persons in Talbot county drawing weekly relief checks.

Frank Shuck, secretary of the Tri-State Packers Association, said an appeal would be made to Governor O'Connor if the state office refuses to prove the list.

Shuck, chairman of the Easton delegation that will go to the international convention at Toronto in June, was instructed to urge united action in support of the problem, and to ask that the matter be brought to attention of Congress if it is found that the situation is general.

Golf-Playing Executives Scored by General

WASHINGTON, April 29 (AP)—Industrial executives who play golf during office hours got a verbal spanking today from Lieutenant General Brehon B. Somervell, chief of the army's services of supply.

In a general discussion of army production and supply problems, Somervell said at a press conference that the flow of supplies has been very good "but I don't want to create the impression that we have solved this problem."

"We haven't. There is a terrific job to be done, and it's going to take every ounce of brains and devotion to duty that industry possesses to do it."

"In this connection, there has been a good deal said about labor. I'd like to say a word about the officials of big companies who are out playing golf when we try to get them on the phone. We've got to have the same devotion to duty from these men as management expects from its employees if we are going to put this thing over."

I found the way to new pep... vitality... better looks!

A truly marvelous change can be brought about by overcoming miserable digestive complaints, under-weight, sluggishness, loss of appetite—all by two important steps—

● Restore vital digestive juices in the stomach... energize your body with rich, red blood!

If you are one of those unfortunate ones who have worked under a strain, failed to eat the proper food, or have suffered with colds, the flu, or other illness... yet have no organic trouble or focal infection... and your blood-cells have become reduced in vitality... if your stomach digestion refuses to work properly, then here is what should help you!

S.S.S. Tonic is especially designed to build up blood strength when deficient... to revive and stimulate those stomach juices which digest the food so your body can make proper use of it in rebuilding worn-out tissue. These two important results enable you to enjoy the food you do eat... to make use of it as Nature intended. Thus you may get new vitality... become animated... more attractive!

Build sturdy health

Because S.S.S. is in liquid form it begins its work as soon as you take it. Surprising results may be had by making the S.S.S. treatment a part of your daily diet. Thousands and thousands of users have testified to the benefits S.S.S. Tonic has brought to them and scientific research shows that it usually gets results—that's why so many say "S.S.S. Don't worry, girls, it isn't a case of beauty versus bullets, even though the metal for lipstick containers is needed to make cartridge shells.

The cosmetic companies have rushed into action to help you keep your lips pretty despite all. Some are coming out soon with lipstick cases made of paper, which aren't as flimsy as they sound.

And, in case you didn't know, most cosmetic manufacturers produce standard refills for their containers. It's simple enough to dig out the last of your old paste, scrub the case well and insert the refill.

Empty Gun, Scream Frighten Off Burglar

TOPEKA, Kans. (AP)—Wade Reed investigated but found nothing out of the ordinary after he and his wife and friends heard noises, at night, outside a window of their home.

So Mrs. Reed seized a gun to demonstrate some of the home defense technique she was learning in a pistol-shooting class. She rushed to the bedroom, threw open a window and thrust the pistol outside—right into the face of a man standing there.

He, undoubtedly a burglar, was as startled as Mrs. Reed. She snapped the trigger but the gun was empty. She screamed. And the fellow ran.

Add Army Slang: Figone Means Chow

FORT F. E. WARREN, Wyo. (AP)—The cry of "chow" and of "Figone" have the same meaning for Company I, fifth QM training regiment, Quartermaster Replacement Training Center, at Fort Warren. It means it's time to eat.

Pvt. Frank Figone's father owns a restaurant in Berkeley, Calif., and Mr. Figone likes the Army so much he ships his son and Company I whole crates of grapefruit, oranges, apples, eggs and recently a roasted turkey.

When the boys cry "Figone," it means a fresh shipment has just arrived from California and everybody eats.

Once Eye-Fillers, Now Bandages

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP)—An ingenious means of sending bandages to China is being conducted by the American Bureau for Medical Aid to China.

Women are asked to contribute old silk stockings. These are fumigated, then used as padding in shipments of other goods—thus saving cargo space.

With each 25 stockings which are unpacked at various Chinese points is found an illustrated folder, printed in English and Chinese, showing how the stockings may be used in bandaging various wounds.

Not Busy Enough With 165 Alarms

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (AP)—Diary of a Springfield fireman summarizes his company's activities for one month as follows: Answered 165 alarms; washed the dust from College street; rescued one cat; put up an aerial for radio; stopped a leaky refrigerator; took down a beauty shop sign and kept the flag on Public Square untangled on windy days.

A pure-bred dog show is taking place somewhere in the United States almost every day in the year.

One Way To Save Cost of Want Ad

GRAND JUNCTION, Colo. (AP)—A farmer, who advertised for a horse, says he has found a new species of borrower. After the want ad appeared, said the farmer, a fellow called and wanted to borrow the horse. "I want to buy a horse, too, and you undoubtedly got several replies to your ad, so when you are through with them, will you please turn them over to me?"

The farmer bought a horse and then gave his surplus replies to the second fellow, who also made a purchase.

The Call for Total War Effort

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S PLEA for all-out war effort will find ready response from Americans. It is good to note that he realizes and stresses the fact, so frequently and so unfortunately belied in congressional circles, that the people are not complacent, but that they realize the magnitude of the task now before them and are cheerfully and patriotically willing to do everything they may be called upon to do in helping to bring victory.

What the president had to say about self-denial and sacrifice in the interest of victory should be taken to heart in various official circles as it is being taken by the people generally. "All of us are used to spending money for things we want but which are not absolutely essential," he said. "We will all have to forego that spending."

That applies to government, as well as to people, and the tardiness that has characterized governmental appreciation of the fact should be corrected at once. When it is, added encouragement and inspiration will be provided for the people. As the president said, "the spending of these enormous sums presents grave danger of disaster to our national economy."

Another thing the president recognized in his frigid chat was the necessity for keeping the economic structure of our country fortified. That should be kept in mind with regard to the imposition of extraordinary war taxes. Everybody wants to pay to the utmost for the war effort, but their backs and the tools they use must not be broken in the requirement.

At the moment, one of the greatest helps to the war program is the purchase of war stamps and bonds. That, too, as Mark Sullivan points out in his dispatch elsewhere on this page, will serve to strengthen our economy and particularly to safeguard it for the future.

A Protest Needing Effective Expression

THE STAND taken by the Republican National Committee at Chicago has made possible what has been painfully lacking for some time, a concerted, effective, organized medium for expressing a protest against things direly needing correction, in the opinion of the Charleston, W. Va., Daily Mail.

The Daily Mail says that in taking that stand the party leaders have not stooped to "politics" in any vicious or unpatriotic sense. Rather they have recognized a widespread public dissatisfaction with a blithe policy of spending as usual during a war having all the aspects of the extraordinary. It means merely an effort to enforce some consideration for the elementary principles of economics that debts incurred must somehow or other be liquidated and that the wellbeing of the taxpayers must have some consideration in the process.

"The administration," says the Daily Mail, "has displayed a striking reluctance to do this. Enjoying a tremendous public support and enthusiasm for its war program, it has taken advantage of that support and viewed it as a complete endorsement of its entire fiscal program."

"It is completely mistaken in this view. There is no public unwillingness to spend what is necessary to win the war, although, as it now appears, it may take as much as $300,000,000,000 to do it. There is a conviction and a growing one that the enormity of this bill for military necessities is all the better reason to curtail our expenditures for nonessentials."

"That conviction thrives on the information that Washington is still spending for golf courses in New Mexico, musical entertainment in West Virginia, publicity for the bushel basket in the capital and dozens of other items which have nothing to do with winning the war or maintaining the normal functions of government."

The Daily Mail has stated the case well.

The Limitation Of Incomes

ONE of the biggest and hottest of the potatoes ever tossed is the suggestion by President Roosevelt that war taxation should be so stringent that it will prevent any individual from enjoying a net income of more than $25,000 after the payment of taxes.

There are around 50,000 such persons left in this country now—the number has been steadily dwindling from the days of the big hurrah—but they are potent enough to raise quite a ruckus, and of course that is to be expected.

Here, however, the president again has the weight of numbers with him. By subtracting the 50,000 mentioned from our total population, it is seen that quite a multitude will either approve the suggestion or remain quite indifferent about it.

in the belief that any individual ought to be able to keep the wolf from the door, even if she is there with a litter of pups, when one has a draw of anything around twenty-five grand or more.

As pointed out by one of our Washington correspondents, such a limitation would be disastrous to a lot of charitable and other institutions, and even to business concerns. The president, however, referred to incomes for the individual, which may be interpreted as excluding the other categories.

The $25,000 limitation is, of course, a species of confiscation and would mean the death of the free enterprise system here if followed which, as we understand it, is one of the things for which we are fighting in this global war. But Mr. Roosevelt did not overlook that angle and particularly limited it to the "time of this grave national danger." But we shall have plenty of those who will feel apprehensive over this as a possible entering wedge of a future so-called share-the-wealth policy.

Debt retirement, recommended by the president, would have little chance under this limitation unless it is modified for such a purpose. There should, in fact, be some allowance for this anyway.

The 50,000 income drawers who would be struck by the limitation probably would be able to get along, but their readjustment to it would have considerable extension into the general economy. Their larger incomes have predicated a certain scale of living involving a spending for wages and supplies that would certainly have to be curtailed. Those with large establishments, although these have been going out for some time, will probably be in a pretty pickle.

The president's suggestion serves again to stress the inequalities of the taxing processes that now obtain.

Industrial Centers Most Likely Targets

IT should not have been necessary to warn Americans that the Axis may retaliate for the raids against Tokyo. The people of this country are sufficiently well acquainted with Axis methods to know that this is a possibility.

When the European war began, Hitler threatened to drop ten bombs on Britain for every one dropped over Germany. In 1940 he more than fulfilled his threat, even though at present he does not appear to be living up to his goal.

Police Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine of New York city expects that retaliation by the Axis for the Tokyo raids will bring an attack from the air on the metropolis. He contends that nothing would give the gangsters, Hitler and Mussolini, more pleasure than the destruction of America's largest city.

Apparently Mr. Valentine forgets that the men he mentions are more practical than pleasure seeking, and that they are much more likely to select as their targets big industrial cities, constructed largely of wood, concentrated on war production. Such raids will be made if the Axis can evolve any practicable means of making them. If they come, they may cause much damage in spots.

But America's war production effort is so widespread and so huge that no token air raids could disrupt it or seriously impede it. The nation has become a beehive of war production from coast to coast and from border to border.

In any event, civilian defense, as well as military defense, must be speeded.

A reader suggests that the present conflict be called the Last war. He seems to have overlooked the fact that the ruckus in 1914-1918 was called the War to End War.

What Is Culture, Anyway?

By MARSHALL MASLIN

Don't tell me your friend is a man of culture and I am sure to like him. Introduce me and let me see for myself what he is like.

Let me live for a few minutes in the magnetism of his personality. Let me see him smile, let me hear him say REAL things, let me know—not from him but from others—of the things he DOES.

You say he has culture? He can read Latin and Greek in the originals? He has "read everything"? He knows everybody worth knowing and has been all over the world? He is one of those odd fellows who can enjoy a problem in calculus? He knows what the professional philosophers are talking about when they mention the "Gestalt Theoret"? He speaks seven foreign languages and is a man of extraordinary culture?

Very well, I believe you and I'd like to meet him. I would also like to see a dog that can talk, a horse that can do arithmetic problems, I'd go across the street to gaze at a one-ton watermelon—and if Greta Garbo were in town, I'd put my head out of the window to see the lady. I surely would, and I'd also like to meet your friend of enormous culture.

But before I bow my head in reverence and place him high above with the great men of the earth—let me what is GROWING in his culture.... That's what I'd like to know.

Once I was in a laboratory and saw a long glass tube full of a murky liquid. I was told it was a broth of peptone, beef and glucose, and also that it contained enough living diphtheria germs to kill every human being in our town. The doctor in the laboratory called the food in which the deadly germs were living—a CULTURE.

And that's what real culture is—a FOOD. Deadly things can grow in it. Good things can grow there.... What is growing in your friend's culture?

Snobbery? Arrogance? Pettiness? Pride? Self-satisfaction? Hate? Is his culture food for the great evils of mankind? Or is it food for Friendliness? For Understanding? For Piety? For Generosity? For kind Wisdom? For deep-seated Love?

Tell me, please, before I meet your learned friend. So that I'm sure to know when I say "I'm glad to know you" whether I'm being polite or speaking the truth!

Institutions and Business Are Hit By Income Limit

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, April 29—President Roosevelt's suggestion of a $25,000 limit for individuals after taxes may mean less hardship for the individuals concerned than for the other persons and institutions affected by such a policy.

Thus, one of the first effects may be the cancellation of insurance policies entered into for protection purposes. Just why individuals who are saving money and keeping up insurance should be penalized as a means of curbing inflation when their own savings plans really work against inflationary trends is a mystery.

If the president had said that $25,000 was a proper base after taxes and after deductions for any savings either in insurance or war bond purchases up to a certain limit, the plan might be more widely favored.

Then there is the question of philanthropies and deductions for charities. If the $25,000 limit is insisted upon and out of that sum must come all charities, the result might be injurious to many hospitals, churches and colleges as well as community chests.

The present law permits a fifteen percent deduction for charitable purposes. A man with a $60,000 income would be allowed about $9,000 as a charity deduction but there are men with incomes of $100,000 or over who contribute annually much more than that sum.

Charities Face Difficulties
It is true the government could take over all the work hitherto done by the charitable institutions or that individuals with lesser incomes might be prevailed upon to contribute more heavily but there can be no doubt that charitable institutions are in for some serious days during the transition period.

Certainly some plan whereby the salary reductions would be less abrupt or else unlimited deductions would be permitted for contributions to bona fide charities will be needed if the social structure of the nation is not to suffer.

The president's plan for curbing inflation urges that debt be paid off. But if the idea is sound for individuals it is even more important for businesses to get out of debt.

"Elimination of private debts," says the president, "and an accumulation of savings will provide a form of insurance against post-war depression."

But when a business which seeks to pay off its debts finds that all profits above six per cent on its capital are, for instance, taken up in taxes by the federal government, how can there be a substantial reduction in debt?

There is no doubt that businesses which have bank debt or capital debt would be better off to pay it down to the lowest possible point as a protection against future contingencies. There is no doubt also that businesses which have debentures or bonds outstanding on which a certain sum must be paid annually under sinking fund agreements would like to comply with the president's suggestion. But how can they do it under the very tax proposals being urged by the president and the treasury experts?

Some form of deduction for debt reduction would be an incentive to thrift and would strengthen particularly the small businesses. Thus far, though not so intended, of course, by the New Deal, its tax laws have operated in favor of big businesses and the well-heeled financial institutions which got their capital in pre-New Deal days. Any company that has sought to raise money to compete with big business since 1933 has had to face obstacles and handicaps not present before that year so that the total amount of private financing in recent years has been woefully small in comparison with a decade before.

Now when there is a greater gross income for more businesses and the time has arrived when small businesses can begin to compete with the larger concerns, the administration has brought forth a plan that will deal a solar plexus blow to the idea of free competition. There are some new dealers who do not really believe in the competitive system. They want to see the state furnish the capital and some of their attacks on big business seem to be designed to bring about the absorption of large enterprises into a wide system of public ownership.

STUMPING THE GOOD FAIRY

War Bond Protection Is Chief Object Of Price Freezing, Mark Sullivan Says

By MARK SULLIVAN

The fate of the small businesses does not seem to have impressed itself enough on the present administration, for while lately there has been authorization to furnish government loans to small businesses, a much better way is to permit the re-creation of private capital through allowance of deductions for tax purposes on sums paid for debt retirement on a graduated scale.

Four Steps To End Worry

Practical Suggestions Are Given by Magazine Writer

If you worry—and the chances are pretty good that you do—there are, according to William S. Reilly, noted psychologist, several things you can do about it. These things, as detailed in Your Life Magazine, have a particular application to the present.

"If you worry about the outcome of the war, or what might happen to us all in the future," Dr. Reilly says, "try this plan:

"1. Condition your body until you are in vigorous health. It is hard to worry if your health is good.

"2. Think of the things you fear for the United States, and determine what you yourself can do to help prevent them. At the same time realize what is being done by the country as a whole to ward off the evils you anticipate.

"3. If you still worry, think of the worst that could happen. Could you face it? Have other people suffered similar trials? Have they won out in the end? You might even find some advantage in the new condition, along with the hardships. Ask yourself, could you not live through the change you fear, and survive?"

"4. Being prepared for the worst, go right on working and getting others to work for the things which will prevent the outcome you dread, but think mainly of the outcome you want and toward which you are working. Remember that the patriot spends all his time working for his country. Nobody ever worried an army into victory!"

Next the president takes up prices

rubber bands, envelopes, scratch paper, sealing tape, pencils, typewriter ribbons, carbon paper, etc. These and similar articles have a definite and important place in war production, and civilian consumption must be reduced in many instances.

Take extra-special care of mechanical equipment. Inspect it, clean it, and oil it frequently. Repairs and replacement will become increasingly more difficult. Save on fuels.

Retail industry knows what it is talking about. The chain stores and the organized independents are studying ways and means to conserve all possible materials. It takes five pounds of paper to pack an ordinary artillery shell. The military appetite for rubber, metals, textiles, leather, etc., is virtually insatiable. Every business—and every individual—should emulate retailing's drive to prevent waste.

Use office supplies sparingly. Get maximum service from such common articles as paper clips, pins,

To grasp President Roosevelt's message, and the whole program set under way this week, start with war bonds. In truth, war bonds are the heart, and the key of the whole matter—that is, the relation between war bonds and cost of living.

Between war bonds and cost of living, there is today a certain relation. To preserve that relation, roughly, for the indefinite future—that is the central purpose of the immense effort now being organized.

The relation between war bonds and cost of living, everybody can see. A war bond of low denomination costs $18.75. Such a bond today is equal to, speaking roughly, three pairs of shoes, or two $9 dresses, or an inexpensive suit of men's clothes, or nearly 100 gallons of gasoline, or some forty or fifty pounds of butter. It is about one-third the cost of a plow, or one-fiftieth the cost of a tractor.

And the purpose of what we are attempting is to preserve, roughly, that relation—to see to it that a war bond a year from now, or two years or ten, will be worth roughly the same. To see to it that if, in the future, a war bond is turned into cash, the money will buy roughly what it will buy today.

How to accomplish this? That is what the president sets out to answer, in his message, and in the program of action now started. The way is obvious—it is to keep goods at roughly the same prices; to keep each item about the same, and the aggregate the same.

As a start, President Roosevelt takes prices of food—that is, the prices of farm crops. Mr. Roosevelt specifically, that these are to be kept about the same. He does not say "the same"—the term he uses is "parity," which can have a variable meaning; but he clearly means that prices of farm crops be kept roughly the same. To this end, the president is direct and courageous. He asks Congress to make a slight change in the law, which will permit the administration to keep prices of farm crops at the present level. With this level, farmers in general are content—provided, and only provided, prices of other goods are kept roughly the same; provided the price of what the farmer must buy remains the same.

Next the president takes up prices

of goods in general, manufactured articles and the like. About these, the administration already has power, and is exercising it. Price Administrator Leon Henderson has authority to put, and is putting, a "ceiling"—that is, a maximum—on practically all articles in common use. The ceiling is to be, in general, about the present level.

Wage Stabilization
The next factor is wages. About this, the president is less direct. He says the price of labor—that is wages—should not be regulated by act of Congress, as are the prices of crops and of goods generally. For this there is partial justification. But the president does say, clearly and specifically, that "wages in general can and should be kept at existing scales." For accomplishing this, he proposes that if labor unions make demands for higher wages, and if such demands are carried up to the War Labor Board for arbitration, the labor board should rule against the demands (with some minor exceptions.)

Thus the sum of the president's program amounts to this: Prices of goods in general are to be kept from rising by law. Prices of food—that is, farm crops—are to be kept from rising by law, as changed in accord with the President's recommendation. Wages are to be kept from rising by the administration, without action by Congress.

Whole Responsibility Assumed
In taking responsibility for wages, the administration assumes, really, the responsibility for all. For if wages go up, then everything else will go up. If wages go up, prices of manufactured goods will go up; price of what the farmer buys will go up. Therefore the farmer will demand, and will have to get, higher prices for his crops. That would mean higher prices of food, higher cost of living. Higher cost of living would lead to demands for yet higher wages—and the upward spiral of inflation would get under way, with the sky the limit. Only, the end would be, not the sky, but hell—economic and social hell.

Who is interested in helping the president with his program? The answer is, everybody. Specifically and especially, owners of war bonds are interested. And the owners of war bonds are, or are going to be, the largest class in the country. It will be a larger class than labor, for it includes labor; a larger class than farmers, for it includes farmers. No interest of any one class, is as great as the interest of all in avoiding inflation.

Other Groups
To owners of war bonds, add other groups, practically all of them overlapping—owners of all sorts of ordinary bonds, beneficiaries of life insurance policies, receivers of pensions from corporations, teachers and students in colleges whose endowments consist of bonds, employees and patients of endowed hospitals. All these have a common interest with owners of war bonds in preventing inflation. Hardly any advantage that would come to any person or group, through higher prices or higher wages, would be as great as the disadvantage that would come to them by inflation.

Further, for reasons too complex to set forth here, the act of buying war bonds is itself a preventive of inflation. For all, the answer is: Buy bonds—and preserve their value by helping in the program to prevent rise in the cost of living.

It is Time To Save
From the Industrial News Review

At the direct request of the government, retail stores are carrying on aggressive campaigns to prevent waste and save materials of all kinds.

The Institute of Distribution, which represents a number of important retail organizations, offers some excellent advice. Save scrap metal, old rubber, rags, etc. Give this salvage to your favorite charity or sell it to the nearest junk and waste paper dealer.

Use office supplies sparingly. Get maximum service from such common articles as paper clips, pins, rubber bands, envelopes, scratch paper, sealing tape, pencils, typewriter ribbons, carbon paper, etc. These and similar articles have a definite and important place in war production, and civilian consumption must be reduced in many instances.

Take extra-special care of mechanical equipment. Inspect it, clean it, and oil it frequently. Repairs and replacement will become increasingly more difficult. Save on fuels.

Trouble Is Seen Ahead in Congress On Price Freezing

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, April 29 — The lack of enthusiasm in congressional comment on Mr. Roosevelt's new price-freezing apparatus forecasts trouble on the few features which Congress was called upon to enact.

It was quite evident from what some of the prominent leaders did not say, and from what others said behind their hands off - the record that all three of the President's suggested courses of legislative action will encounter difficulties.

The farm bloc will strenuously resist the suggestion that its 110 percent of parity goal be moved back. Instead the Senate Appropriations Committee is expected to write into the agricultural appropriations bill a restriction against government dumping of surpluses.

The proposed $25,000 limit on income found an equally unwelcome reception, although this was not quite as evident, the restriction smacks too much of confiscation.

No doubt Congress will enact some kind of additional excess profits tax, but not one as drastic as the treasury and the President have in mind.

Thus on all three points the President's purposes will be moderated.

A Stalling Scheme
The prevailing opinion in the congressional cloakrooms is that Mr. Roosevelt well knew that these three suggestions would meet a cold reception.

The general thought was the message was intended to prepare public opinion for the price-fixing and to stop the congressional drive on labor.

From the first standpoint, the program let Congress and the country have a real understanding of overall economic policy, thus softening the effects of the stringent price ceiling imposed by Henderson twenty-four hours later.

There is no question also that it served to wrap a wet blanket around the already cornered movement for labor law revision. There is even less chance of action in the House now than before on the Vinson bill to establish a forty-eight-hour week.

Senator Connally's prompt withdrawal of this plant-seizure bill in the Senate, on the ground that he did not wish to get into a scrap with the President, will have a similar dampening effect on efforts to restrain labor in that branch.

Typical Compromise
The economic freezing apparatus offered by the President was, as a whole, delicately balanced politically from the radical-conservative and compulsion-voluntary standpoints. It was a typical Roosevelt contrivance devised as a compromise between conflicting elements.

The course of radical compulsion was offered on prices and taxes, but the method of voluntary appeal was suggested for bond sales.

The interests of farmers and labor were likewise finely weighed, an indirect "stabilization" of wages will offend labor little and satisfy farm complainants, while the further limitation of farm prices (which cannot be expected) will satisfy labor and not make the farmers angry very long.

In all essentials, the plan is thus just as outlined in this column of April 23.

British Experience
Whether the plan will work can only be determined by experience. The British have had in effect the same mild indirect wage policy yet wages have risen in the average of six percent in the last year. As six percent is the average, many rates have risen considerably more.

The British National Arbitration Tribunal (corresponding to our War Labor Board) has only used official announcement that government policy favors stabilization.

British experience on prices is not comparable to that Roosevelt proposes to do. The government there started out by merely asking merchants not to increase prices unless individual costs of production increased.

Power Given Board
This proved wholly unsatisfactory, and on July 22, 1941, the board of trade was given the power to act arbitrarily. But all the board did was to select a limited list of commodities upon which ceilings were placed. No general freeze order was attempted.

Lutman Rites Are Held in Westernport

Services Are Conducted by the Rev. W. B. Orndorff

WESTERNPORT, April 29.—Funeral services for William Lutman, 75, a retired Western Maryland Railroad worker, who died at his home Sunday morning, were conducted this afternoon in Boal's Funeral Home. W. Va. Jaycees Are Conducting Physical Fitness Program

BLUEFIELD, W. Va., April 29 (P)—The Junior Chamber of Commerce has launched successfully a civilian physical conditioning class it believes is the first of its kind in the country.

"Although the original plan," says President Jack Dillard, "was to offer those who expected to be drafted a means of fitting themselves for the more rigorous military life, we have since broadened the plan to include those who will remain at home."

"Physical fitness at home is just as essential to morale as fitness in the army is to good soldiering."

Centenarian's Broken Bone Knits

SAPULPA, Okla. (P)—At 111 years of age "Aunt" Lizzie Devers has made what doctors say is "a remarkable recovery" from auto accident injuries. The day before Thanksgiving Day she suffered a fractured arm and other injuries. The bone knitted and Aunt Lizzie is out of the hospital after five months. Physicians said the knitting of a bone, in a person of that age, was unusual.

to emulate his example. Such plans ordinarily do not work out so profitably in Hollywood.

Wayne, currently co-starred by Universal with Marlene Dietrich and Randolph Scott in Rex Beach's "The Spoilers" starting at the Liberty tomorrow, was a U. S. C. football player at the time, with a summer vacation job as prop boy on a movie set.

Ford, who is always cooking up some practical joke, asked the young husky to show him how to "buck" in a football line. As Wayne began to take his crouch, the director tripped him and he fell face flat in to a thick, oozy mess of composition mud. The company roared.

Wayne picked himself up, calmly regarded Ford, and said, "you try it."

"Okay, I will," smiled the director. Ford did, but this time the pig-skinner suddenly whirled upon him, shooting out his right leg—the same one that kicked a football the length of the field—and caught Ford unawares, right in the middle of his backside. Plop, he went into the phony mud.

Wayne was already marching off the set to pick up his final paycheck, but the director ran over and pulled him back.

It was the beginning of one of Hollywood's most famous friendships, and also the big turning point in Wayne's life.

Music In Russia Is Theme of Talk And Recital Here

Dr. David Rozanoff Plays for Sisterhood of B'er Chayim Temple

"Made in Russia" was the theme of the lecture-recital given by Dr. David Rozanoff, pianist, at the Chayim temple yesterday afternoon in the vestry room. Dr. Rozanoff said he had chosen this theme because it would be favorably received this year and though he would not have dared to speak of Russian music and attainments last year.

In the time of the Czars, he said, music was only for the nobility but today the world recognizes that Russia has produced more great composers and soloists than any other nation, due largely to the establishment of the national school of music for research and to accumulate the folk music of the peasants. Among the famous pianists he mentioned Ossip Gabrilowitch, and Heifetz and Elman as violinists.

The first number he played, Tchaikowsky's "Autumn," he explained deals with a Russian peasant victim of tuberculosis caught up by an early autumn and afraid he would not see sunshine again. Through the piece the question is repeated, why did autumn come too soon?

Before playing the second selection, "Nocturn" by the same composer, Dr. Rozanoff explained it was written when the composer was only eighteen years old and when a musician was not accepted by the nobility. It tells of his love for a young noblewoman and in ending changes from a minor to a major key. The composition was not allowed to be published but has been rearranged and will be played this summer by the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

The concluding number on the program, "Oriental Fantasia," Rubinstein, he explained was composed of traditional Jewish melodies and finished in a happier mood with a Chassidic dance.

Mr. Allan T. Hirsch presided at the luncheon preceding the recital and at the business session following. Mrs. Isaac Hirsch read the prayer and Mrs. Aaron Lefkowitz introduced Dr. Rozanoff, who is on exchange leave from the Conservatory of Music, Porto Rico and is giving a summer course at Peabody Conservatory in Baltimore.

EAST SIDE SCHOOL P-T.A. WILL PRESENT VARIETY SHOW

Several numbers will be presented by Rhythm bands composed of pupils of the first grade and will be directed by leaders selected from among the children.

Folk Dances, "Danish Dance of Greeting" and "The Chimes of Dunkirk" will be given by pupils of the second grade. Groups from the fifth and sixth grades will present six dances, "Gustaf Skool," "Blekling," "Pop Goes the Weasel," "Virginia Reel," "Captain Jinks" and "Polly Wolly Doodle." An interlude of dancing will be presented by the Steckman School of Dancing.

The grand finale will be a humorous playlet, "Hickory Hollow School," given by members of the P-T-A. Jack and Gene Yutzy will present a piano duet "Amarielis" between numbers and Gene Yutzy will sing "O Sole Mio." Henry Simmons will present songs with guitar accompaniment. Original costumes will be worn by the cast.

dictation, but has assistance from an adequate secretarial staff. "Night work?" Yes, indeed—when any writing is involved. She is, however, spared the night duty. The Haid, who lives in the White House available for night calls. Miss Lee lives in a pleasant, nearby apartment with her mother, Mrs. Alice Tully.

Like all the White House officials, "Grace" as the president's many kindresses in deed and words that her boss (sooner her way freely.

"Most Typical"—The 27-year-old brunette who sits outside Leon Henderson's office. She's Lou Landreth and is just as keen as to Mr. Price Fixer as secretary. Working long hours as secretary, energetic girl is doing for the war effort. She's learning to fly. With a Piper Cub and is busy piloting flying hours necessary to solo. It's aid training she got three years ago.

After graduation seven years ago from the Women's college at the University of North Carolina, Miss Landreth came to Washington. She didn't have a job lined up, but that long before she got a job with the WPA. Lucky she did, because on this job she met Leon Henderson. She "sold him" the idea of working for him when he went with the Securities and Exchange commission. She has developed a technique for handling what she calls the "cranks" who pour into her boss' office. Her system is "no listen"—then reroute them to a lesser official who can explain the complicated rulings on price ceilings, freezing order and rationing just as well as the administrator.

Chewing Gum, Cigars—But she can't devote her entire day to cranks. She has to sort, read and dictate letters, not to menin keeping Henderson supplied with cigars, his chewing gum and a lunch, which he prefers to eat at his desk.

To her, the price administrator a regular fellow, but not dignified enough to please her. (We suspect Henderson likes her. (We think so important to create.) For example, there is the now famous incident of the bicycle. She was asked to pose with him on a bicycle for newspaper photographs. She did, but she didn't like it a little bit.

THE MOST AMBITIOUS—23-year-old Iona Thornton, who started her career in a government typing "pool" and now, three years later, is secretary to Donald Nelson. That's a remarkable feat in Washington, where government positions are traditionally slow.

She says "no" to congressmen, industrialists, small business men, diplomats, generals and government officials and makes them Mrs. Klotz in it.

THE MOST EXPERIENCED—Although her quarters are spacious, they are unpretentious and didn't handicap this well-informed secretary. She has five secretaries working for her and an office so large it's difficult to find petite clerk. Henry many a china knick-knack is scattered about the room. She talks about her work with quiet enthusiasm. Ever since, when she married the secretary about her 13-year-old daughter and the bumps together, she hasn't gone to college (she place,

Uncle Sam's Older Nephews Go Back To Work To Do Their Bit for U. S.

Older, already trained men, many of whom haven't worked productively for years, are coming back into the war industries, which have great need of their services. At the same time, some of these older men are training youths to meet the requirements of precision work.

By BERT H. DAVIS
Central Press Correspondent
NEWARK, N. J., April 29.—Pop Brainerd is back in harness.

The harness fits. He intends it "for the duration." A metal specialty shop to which he trucked material a dozen years ago put Pop on the payroll last fall. That happened almost on the white-haired man's birthday—making his 63rd birthday one of the merriest he's had.

"For I've earned my keep from the time I was 13 and boarded out to a farmer," says Pop. "Drove horses first on coming to the city, like many another farm boy. Then I learned to drive a truck and to make jack-of-all-trades repairs to the trucks and tractors. I was partner in one company for several years I was working at a truck terminal when I hurt my leg a couple of years ago."

After the accident, they wouldn't take Pop back into the trucking business. Foremen and bosses grinned at this old-timer, told him he'd done his day's work and ought to let the young fellows pick up the load. Pop couldn't find much fault with them. Trucking is hard on old bones and the cold and damp in the downtown terminals where trucks are loaded will go right through you.

"You remember me," Brainerd assured the shipping clerk in a New Jersey shop that sub-contracts Army and Navy work. "Why, I've pulled tons of stuff in and out of this alley—in old Dick Sullivan's day."

"I wish you'd put me on something. I can do lots of things still."

Back in Harness

They told Pop to sit by the door and check boxes and crates as they came and went. They had him repair some of the hand trucks that had broken down—nobody else seemed to have time to fix them. The new harness was light, but at least Pop was now "hitched up" and waiting for something better.

Just getting on the payroll was Pop's plan of strategy. The future would take care of itself. Many times before he'd been taken on for a small job, even for one day's work, and found himself a niche in the force.

"We couldn't keep Pop glued to that seat by the door," the shipping clerk told me. "He saw too many little things that needed fixing and looking after. We have no garage at the plant, or I'd have liked to send him in there to look after the equipment."

"Then Pop asked about working steady at one of the machines in the shop. He'd like to feel that he was actually handling the Army and Navy castings and stampings—sort of had a hand in the war. That was just after Pearl Harbor. Pop was as ambitious as a 16-year-old, and so I told him we'd give him a young man's job, a beginner's job on a machine, if he'd go through a refresher course."

The course that the shipping clerk suggested sent Pop to a public vocational Youth Administration instruction for a four weeks' course.

Blueprint Work

In the first week or 10 days, most of the lessons were on blueprint reading, the use of various tools, and practical mathematics for shop work.

There isn't supposed to be much home work in that refresher course, but Pop managed to take home books just about every night. The books were shop manuals that explain how to get the best results from the half-dozen types of machines in which the white-haired student was most interested.

In the last two-thirds of that special course at "vo" school, Pop was introduced to the major skills and some of the fine points connected with those same machines. He did some of his best work on a high-powered press. That's the sort of machine they turned over to Pop when he returned triumphantly to the shop where he used to sit by the door and check shipments.

A technical name for such training is "up-grading." A lot of it goes on in every industrial city. That's a part of the program of war-work training in which N. Y. A., C. C. C., W. P. A., public schools, colleges, and even agencies like the Y. W. C. A. are participating.

Counting in the new young recruits for soiled-collar industrial jobs and the men who've been advanced from unskilled labor or clerical work through refresher courses, America has trained more than two million shop and industrial hands in the last year and a half.

Schools Speed Up

About half of the nation's 1,200 public vocational schools are operating night and day for seven days a week to keep up with the need and demand for such instruction. Much of the training is begun or completed in the shops of industry, and foremen are becoming teachers in this unparalleled influx of new workers to the shops.

The labor division of the O. P. M. believes more than one million workers will benefit from "upgrading" in training and experience during 1942. The nation's war pace actually requires this as a minimum goal for industrial training. Some who were "stepped up" in skills last year are due for further promotion soon—and the men in the sixties as well as many younger men and women are on the "due-for-promotion" list.

This is only a part of the national program that should bring into the labor ranks in 1942 from five to six million Americans who don't normally hold production jobs.

Pop, proudly marching into a metal shop as a full-fledged learner of 63, is only one of America's older sons who'll hasten the Axis sunset.

Mayor Tells Husbands To Care for Kiddies

SOPHIA, W. Va. (AP)—When first-aid classes were scheduled in this Raleigh County town, a number of women complained that they would like to attend but said children couldn't be left at home alone.

Sophia's mayor, Chris Ruble, solved that problem. He delivered an "ultimatum" to all fathers hereabouts. It said, in effect, "It's your turn to stay home and play nursemaid now while the women-folks get their share of war training."

Result—More than 100 women are enrolled.

Scrapbook Will Be Neck High, at Least

LOGAN, W. Va. (AP)—Margaret Rose has picked out a job for herself. She's keeping a scrapbook on the war.

But despite the fact she already has 210 pages and hasn't even pasted in articles about MacArthur yet, she is not dismayed.

Some day, she says, her little sister, Katie, and her little brother, Johnnie, will be called upon to study about this war, and when they are, she adds, all the information will be there—between the pages of a scrapbook that shouldn't stack up more than neck high.

Books with Bottles

NEW YORK (AP)—Metropolitan milkmen turned into book collectors for America's armed forces during Red Cross Book Collection Week. As they delivered the day's milk they picked up books which customers had left at their doors with the empty bottles.

Do not show fine or light seeds in a high wind. This makes cultivation more difficult later.

"Baby Talk" Is No Example for Tot, Dr. Myers Says

Responsible for Much of the Incorrect Speech in Children

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

"Baby talk" is probably responsible for a fourth of the incorrect speech in young children. This is the opinion of Miss Susan R. Thompson, director of kindergartens, connected with the public school system of Oklahoma City. Miss Thompson is directing an excellent program of speech correction with young children in that city.

She also said that children are often encouraged to cling to errors because parents think it is cute and they think the child will outgrow it later. There is the possibility that he will do so, yet there is a probability of his continuing the mistakes. This difficulty has been found in all school grades, and even in adults.

Here I might add that many children would not use baby talk if they did not hear it from their parents. Let me urge parents and teachers, as they try to help the child learn correct sounds instead of wrong ones, that they be very careful not to make him feel ashamed of his mistakes.

Read and Talk to Child
Sometimes a child may not feel like saying the correct form after you. Wait until he is more ready to cooperate. Success in helping the child will depend on how comfortable he feels at the time. Parents who read to the child from his second year, answer all his questions, and constantly talk to him about things he is doing or things being done for him, will contribute to his best speech development. It is encouraging to see increasing

Number of Doctors Who Enter Civilian Practice Will Be Reduced by Conflict

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D. The most pressing of these is the work of the medical boards first. Although our complicity for civilian defense seems to me to fall into three categories. First: There is the supply of civilian physicians for the ordinary normal needs of civilian medical practice; second: There are the two possibilities of an emergency among civilians, one due to an outbreak of an epidemic of infectious disease and the other due to injuries from bombing or a military attack.

Military Needs

This will not be greatly helped even if the medical schools increase their output. The increased output will be needed for military and naval service. For some time, however, there will probably be no dislocation of normal medical attendants, and the procurement and assignment committees will allow the population to use its own family medical adviser as much as possible.

If we should have an emergency, however, undoubtedly a strict form of regulation will occur. For instance, if such a thing as the influenza epidemic which occurred in the last World War should arise, it would be wasteful for one physician in civilian practice to attend patients whose homes were five or six miles apart. A city or county would have to be divided up into regional districts and a physician assigned to each district so that he could make rounds as if he were in a large, spread-out hospital.

In Case of Emergency

The same thing will occur in the event of bombing, sabotage or other military emergencies. Of course, with the possibility of a real military emergency, the work will probably be entirely in the hands of the Army Medical Corps.

All these things can very easily be arranged or planned for some time in advance, but simple as it seems, there is a notable dilatoriness about the completion of arrangements. In the first place, as in every other department of public or political life, we have entirely too many agencies set up.

As I write these words, the situation in the Middle West cities is in a completely disorganized condition. It isn't exactly that we have chaos, but that we have nothing whatever. Perhaps by the time this article is published, something definite will have happened. The possibility of an epidemic, while much more likely than that of bombing raids, is also quite remote. We seem to have been lucky in that we have run into a period in which all contagious diseases are on the down grade. There has been very little contagious disease so far in the army.

Questions and Answers

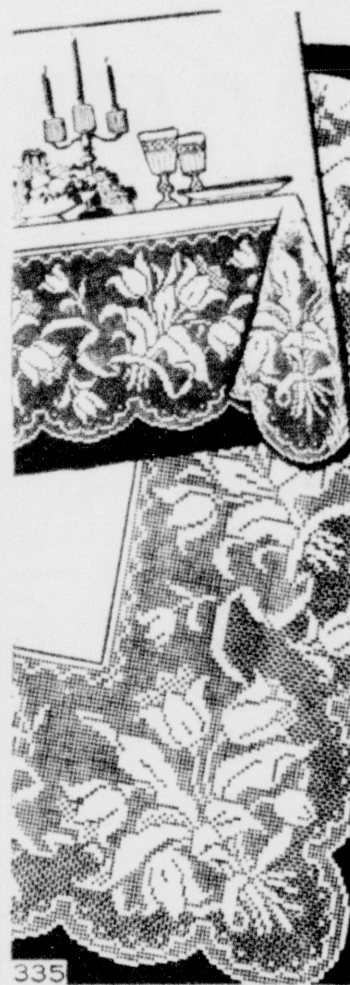

T. R.—Could the partition in the nose (septum) be removed and if so, would it be dangerous?

Answer: This is one of the frequent surgical operations and does not carry with it any special danger.

F. R.—Is inflammatory rheumatism the same as rheumatic fever? Does swelling of the ankles indicate a weak heart? Does inflammatory rheumatism always damage the heart?

Answer: Inflammatory rheuma-

Tired Kidneys Often Bring Sleepless Nights

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. When they get tired and don't work right in the daytime, many people have to get up at night. Frequent urination, passing water with smarting and burning sometimes shows there is something wrong with your kidneys or bladder. Don't neglect this condition and lose valuable, restful sleep.

When disorder of kidney function permits poisonous matter to remain in your blood, it may also cause nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

Plan Is Started To Reduce Speed

BALTIMORE, April 29 (AP)—The Maryland Traffic Safety Commission has begun an intensive program to enlist all Maryland motorists in the campaign to reduce speeds.

The commission has prepared stickers to be pasted on the rear windows of automobiles of cooperating motorists. Frank McShane, executive secretary of the commission, said the stickers would be available through automobile clubs and service stations.

McShane added a chart had been prepared to show the sharp increase in tire wear caused by higher speeds.

An honor system of sugar rationing in Bermuda limits consumption per person to three-quarters of a pound per week, according to the department of Commerce.

The government of Iceland keeps a record of all radio sets imported and names of person to whom sold, the department of Commerce says.

Many of the directors of this work are, in my judgment, putting too much emphasis on the mechanics of the correction and too little on the emotions of the child. This especially applies to the stuttering child, but fortunately there is a growing trend toward the application of more psychology and less mechanics.

THE DAILY STORY NOTHING TO SAY

The Story Never Appeared in the Papers—but That's Because It Was Much Too Important

By AL BURNS

Of course, the story didn't appear in the papers at the time, but down it around where the airfield is located. Thunderbird Field sets in a part of the country with a terrain that won't give enemy bombers or reconnoitering planes an easy job of locating the field. And on this field, and out of the hundred or so pilots daily taking to the air in training ships, none was more blustery nor burly built than Lt. Svenson, newly out of the fertile lands of Minnesota.

Some around Thunderbird called the six-foot-four Swede, christened Olof Svenson, a braggart and a daredevil who performed his aerial acrobatics merely to show off an upward air current and gained altitude in order to survey better the mountainous terrain and find a landing spot. From far up above, he spied a narrow, uphill strip that had the appearance of a dry bed.

The big Swede brought the plane down, heaving a sigh of relief when the plane barely brushed a huge boulder protruding from the bed. He swore a great man-sized oath when he discovered that his gas looking for. And then it came to him: Take that five-gallon can of gas setting at the base of the cliff that rose straight up from the ledge!

The big Swede casually walked over to where the can lay, then suddenly picked it up and, with one hand holding the can, his other already gripping the rip cord of his chute, began to sprint toward the edge of the ledge. With a startled cry, the guard fired but the big Swede was already hurtling downward. And he did not pull the rip cord until he had dropped around 500 feet, making it difficult for the spurring guns to hit him.

The big fellow landed unhurt and within 100 yards of his plane. And then, with bullets kicking up the dust all around him, he raced to the plane, dumped in the gas, swung the plane around and headed into the wind and downhill on the dry bed.

He was in the air and piloting the plane out of those mountains when he heard the roar of twin motors and discovered that the bomber he had seen on the tableland was in the air too! He knew what it was out to do, even though it wasn't an hour before dawn. He called the airport, gave them a description of the plane, but it wasn't until he saw two tiny specks high up in the air some minutes later that he breathed a sigh of relief.

There are folks who saw and heard the bomber when it crashed and exploded in the mountains, but you never saw a thing about it in the papers, and the military aren't saying a thing.

"Hello there"

tank was dry, and he vowed that someone at the field would answer for such negligence. But, for the present, there was nothing to do but explore the mountain and trust to luck that he might find a cabin whose owner might be the proud possessor of a jalopy.

Breathing hard, he reached a point where the trail seemed to run square into solid rock, but as he approached closer he discovered that the seemingly solid rock was, in reality, two massive hulks, the trail continuing through the crevice. He had followed the stone-littered trail for what seemed a half mile when he suddenly heard voices. He emerged from the rock-flanked passage shouting:

"Hello there!"

The sound of a shot and the ping of a bullet as it chipped the rock a few inches above his head was his reward.

"Cut it out!" he roared. "Come out with your hands up!" a voice shouted back at him.

He came out, hands in the air.

He found himself a prisoner on a tableland which was a miniature airfield. Hidden in the cliff that rose straight up from the tableland was a medium bomber, loaded and ready to rain fire and death on Thunderbird Field.

They didn't even bother to tie up Svenson. Once they put a guard with a high-powered rifle at the entrance to the tableland, they reasoned that the big, burly Swede couldn't go anywhere. The huge ledge overhanging the body of the mountain below and on three sides there was a sheer drop of 1,500 feet!

Down below, and in plain sight of his trained aviator's eyes, Lt. Svenson made out the outline of his plane, still stalled in the middle of the dry bed. The bombing of Thunderbird was to take place an hour before dawn and already, now, the sun was beginning to drop toward the west!

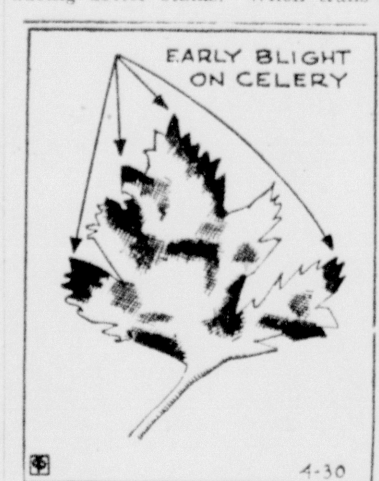

Lt. Svenson swore to himself, kicked the dirt under his feet, and wished that he could sprout the wings of a bird and fly off the ledge. The thought was still with him when a crafty, dawning light came into his eyes.

For no good reason that he could think of, he had not taken off his parachute while climbing the mountain trail. The drop from the overhanging tableland was deep enough to permit him to use his parachute, but then what? His plane had no gas, otherwise he could attempt something these fools were not

To Present "Tom Sawyer"

The opera, "Tom Sawyer," will be presented Friday evening, May 1, in the auditorium of Beall elementary school by the pupils of Tom grades one to seven. The cast will include 300 boys and girls, who are being trained under direction of Miss Doris Metger and Miss Estelle Williams.

To Visit Churches

The Rev. Rev. Nobel C. Powell, D. D., will make his primary visitation to St. John's church, Frostburg, and St. Peter's church, Lonaconing, next Sunday at 11 a. m. and 2:30 p. m. respectively.

Bishop Powell was consecrated last fall as assistant to Bishop Helgenstein on whose death or resignation, he will automatically succeed as Bishop of Maryland.

For eleven years Bishop Powell was rector and student pastor of St. Paul's Memorial church, Charlottesville, where the University of Virginia is located. Then for six years he was rector of Emmanuel church, Baltimore. At the time of his election as Bishop Coadjutor of Maryland, he was dean of Washington Cathedral and warden of the College of Preachers which is connected with the cathedral.

To Issue Arm Bands

Earl M. Kerr, chief air raid warden, announced today that sufficient arm bands for the men, women and boys, attached to civilian defense units of the Frostburg Control Center will be here this week and ready for distribution after being properly processed.

The arm bands, Kerr said, are intended for temporary use and should be replaced by official bands of air raid wardens, auxiliary police and firemen, first aid groups, gas and decontamination corps, messenger boys and other groups who have officially qualified for home defense service.

Plan Dance

Frostburg Council, No. 142, Knights of Columbus, appointed Patrick O'Rourke chairman of a committee to make plans for an "Old Clothes Dance," to be held in R. of C. hall, East Main street, Thursday evening, May 21.

Doc Kenney's orchestra will furnish the music for dancing. The entire profits of the dance will be donated to the Frostburg Control Center.

Barton Defense Unit Officials Make Report on Work during Test Blackout

Frank Williams Tells Members Their Work Is Responsible for Success

BARTON, April 29. — Barton Civilian Defense Unit officials, last evening, made official reports on the conduct of their corps in Monday's county-wide blackout test.

Frank Williams, chief warden of the district, told members attending the meeting that the test, the first to be conducted in the Barton area, was to his mind a huge success and stated that it was due to the efficient work of defense members.

According to reports from the wardens the community was in complete darkness before the warning signal had been silenced.

Barton Hose Company was also praised for its part in the night's work, by the defense officials.

Williams stated at the meeting that the control center will remain open daily from now on and women who have completed defense courses are asked to register and be prepared to spend sometime in helping the defense unit.

Williams said a telephone had been installed in the control center and persons wishing to conduct business there may call Lonaconing 805-F-2.

Girls Are Expected To Replace Service Station Men in Army

WHEELING, W. Va., April 29. — "The day is not far distant, oil men of this area agree, when it will be a young woman who swabs off your windshield, inflates the tires and cheerfully inquires: 'Shall I fill 'er up?'"

Already in neighboring counties of Ohio, girls are filling the gaps left by young men called for military service.

One Wheeling concern, however, has sent out a call for applications and will start a training course as soon as a class has been mustered.

41,782 Foreign-Born Whites Are Reported Living in W. Va.

WASHINGTON, April 29. — West Virginia in 1940 numbered among its population 41,782 foreign-born whites, of whom more than twenty-five per cent were native Italians, a Bureau of the Census compilation discloses.

Comparative state-by-state statistics were not made available, but the Bureau said that the foreign-born white population of the United States decreased 18.3 per cent between 1930 and 1940.

At present, Mrs. Walters is teaching in Moorefield high school.

Mr. Walters is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Walters, of Glenview, and was graduated from Glenview high school and Glenview college. He is a member of Walters and Walters Construction Company but at present is doing defense work in Hagerstown.

The bride wore a crepe suit with matching accessories for the ceremony, and a corsage of orchids. After June 1, they will reside in Hagerstown.

Endorse USO Drive

Hardy County Inter-Civic Club Council endorsed the United Service Organization drive to begin May 11 throughout the nation. Efforts will be made by representative organizations to acquaint all groups with the functions of the USO and the part it plays directly with Hardy county boys in the service.

Power Fails

Electric power service was interrupted for an hour and a half Sunday evening due to a short in the system near the River Bridge just north of Moorefield. A car allegedly ran against and severed a guy wire on one of the poles next to the highway. The guy wire snapped over all three of the high tension lines and shorted the system.

Light and power service in Franklin, Moorefield and Petersburg was affected.

Receive Credentials

Local pilots received their credentials from the Civil Aeronautics Administration as airport officers for the Moorefield Municipal Airport.

Those certified were C. R. Powers, R. E. Fisher, Harold J. Dodd, W. C. Harper and Warren Zirk.

Paper Wins Honor

Cresaptown Test Termed Success

Minor Mistakes Must Be Corrected, Leo McKenzie States

CRESAPTOWN, April 29. — The blackout held in the Cresaptown area Monday in conjunction with the county wide test was termed a success, although a few minor corrections will have to be straightened out. Leo McKenzie, district air raid warden stated.

Particularly commendable work was done by the auxiliary police, the wardens and the messenger unit members, McKenzie said.

Most glaring of Monday night's mistakes was the continued flashes of light as citizens lighted cigarettes. This, said McKenzie, is one of the things that must be corrected and stated that smoking was prohibited in the open at all times during blackouts.

Club Meets

Cresap Homemaker's Club held an all-day meeting Tuesday in the church, with Mrs. Thomas Millar presiding. Delegates were elected to go to College Park June 17.

Baltimore Health Nurses Address Clinic Committee

Compare Advantages of Rural Nursing with Urban Work

MT. SAVAGE, April 29. — Miss Grace Voimer and Miss Edna Faith, public health nurses from Baltimore, spoke at the meeting of Mt. Savage Health Center Committee last night in the community building. They compared public health nursing in the rural districts with that in the larger cities and explained the advantages and disadvantages of each.

Miss Catherine Corley, director of public health nursing in the state of Maryland, also spoke briefly.

The health center has been partially equipped through efforts of the committee and Mrs. Rose Lobb, district health nurse.

The group will hold a card party for the benefit of the center Tuesday evening, May 26, in Junior Order hall.

A health clinic for pre-school children will be held here Friday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock, with Dr. William C. Harrison in charge. Mrs. Lobb stated that several other clinics will be held in May.

Miss Sadie Gladwin, supervisor of county health nurses was also a guest at last night's meeting. A special meeting of the groups will be held Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the Community building. Colin Bowers is chairman of the committee in charge of the plans for a Health Center here.

Brief Mention

John O'Rourke entertained members of the Lion Patrol of the Mt. Savage Boy Scout troop at his home Monday evening. Several short motion pictures were shown by Edwin Pfister, patrol leader. Scout activities were discussed and games were played. Seven members attended.

The Mt. Savage Girl Scout troop met last night in Junior Order hall. After the business session Miss Lucille Houck instructed the group in flag signalling and the Morse code.

A party for the benefit of Jennings Run council, Junior Order of United American Mechanics, will be held Saturday evening at 8:30 o'clock in Junior Order hall.

The Catholic Youth Organization will meet tomorrow (Thursday) evening at 7:30 o'clock in St. Patrick's hall.

The Mt. Savage brick and clay workers union will meet Monday evening at 7:30 o'clock in Junior Order hall.

OUTDOOR ACTIVITIES TRAINING COURSE IS GIVEN HERE

The Outdoor Activities training course was given yesterday from 10 a. m. to 3 p. m. at the day camp site, on Haystack mountain, by Miss Florence Ann Schlott, executive secretary of the Girl Scouts. On the way to the camp site a record was kept of the number of nature objects each person could specifically identify and Mrs. Ruth Lee Andrews was the winner.

The preparation of the noon dinner consisted of a demonstration on stick cooking, one pot dishes, frying in a large tin can and a planked steak, using reflected heat.

The course also included instruction in the use and care of axes and knives and how to make outdoor tables and racks by means of lashing branches together.

Attending were Mrs. Milton Beneman, Mrs. Harry Blonder, Mrs. Clyde Lore, Mrs. Elmo Gower, Mrs. Andrews, Mrs. Lester Millerson, Mrs. Ira Evans, Miss Mary Shriver, Miss Pauline Fisher and Miss Angela Matthall.

Another course in program activities for intermediate and senior leaders will be given at 2 o'clock May 3; the brownie leaders course will be May 6.

Auxiliary Plans Salad-Bridge May 15

A public salad-bridge will be held by the Woman's Auxiliary of Emmanuel Episcopal church in the parish house Friday, May 15, at 1 p. m.

The general chairman for the affair is Mrs. Richard R. Stitzer, who will be assisted by Mrs. Albert W. Keight, reservations; Mrs. Walter H. Hindle, tables and decorations; Mrs. Mark Roe, luncheon and Mrs. Cyril M. Croft, prizes.

The plans were made at the meeting of the group Tuesday afternoon at the parish house.

The Rev. David C. Clark, rector, spoke on "Malvern, Past and Present." He discussed the new rules and regulations for the economic situation after the war which the Malvern conference drew up when it met last year in England. The conference was called by the church of England and members of the House of Commons attended.

Work of Red Cross Described in Talk

An explanation of the work of the Red Cross, with special emphasis on its insular and foreign operations, was made last night by Julius E. Schindler in a radio talk. Schindler told how the Red Cross provides funds for Americans stranded abroad to return home, serves as a clearinghouse for news of war prisoners, provides relief supplies for them and offers assistance to victims of war and other catastrophes throughout the world.

The speaker pointed out that the work of the Red Cross is one illustration of the fact, well recognized by the peoples of the world, that "the American people are sympathetic" and have never turned a deaf ear to a worthy cause.

"The people of the world 'know' we respect the rights of others," he added, "and by the same token we expect our rights to be respected. They know that we can be as energetic in fighting to a successful conclusion the war in which we are now engaged as we been in alleviating suffering and calamities abroad."

Appealing for continued public support of the Red Cross, Schindler reminded his audience that "its spirit is the spirit of the brotherhood of men and the fatherhood of God."

ONE RING ENOUGH

The postman won't have to ring twice if the plans of this bevy of beauties work out. When Acting Postmaster Samuel R. Valliere, of Miami Beach, announced a shortage of male mail carriers due to the war, these pretty girls came to the rescue, offering to see that the famed post office motto is upheld. After a short course in mail delivery, they are shown leaving on a round.

Driver Pays Fine For Assaulting Truck Driver

An argument which started in a North Cumberland alleyway yesterday resulted in Frank Hasselberger, of 608 North Mechanic street, being fined $5 and costs for assaulting Kenneth S. Hopwood on April 24.

Testimony revealed that Hopwood was unloading a truck and of a necessity was blocking the alleyway. Hasselberger had to stop his car and became angry at the delay in getting past the truck. He allegedly struck Hopwood when Hopwood refused to move the truck.

The "third lane" on the east slope of Sideling Hill Mountain in Washington county will be completed in about a week, the state roads commission announced yesterday.

The lane, designed for slow moving trucks to pull off to permit faster-moving traffic to pass, is similar to the one completed last year on the west slope of South Mountain.

The state roads commission also announced that surface treatment of highways in Frederick county would start May 18, and in Washington county around June 1. About twenty-five miles of highway will be resurfaced in Washington county.

DASHING RHETT--TEMPESTUOUS SCARLETT!

Clark Gable and Vivien Leigh in "Gone with the Wind" currently appearing at the Maryland theater.

Theaters Today

"Gone With the Wind" Is Film Achievement

By rights, a report of "Gone with the Wind" which opened yesterday at the Maryland theater should be merely the statement: The greatest picture ever made—in every detail. There are so many superlatives about this picture which David O. Selznick has so finely produced and Victor Fleming so humanely and amazingly directed that one approaches the task of reporting the event of the picture's showing here with a fear that words are wholly inadequate and that the limitations of space prevent praise for everyone concerned.

"Gone with the Wind" is the most faithful filmization of a novel the screen has ever attempted. Every word, character and event in Margaret Mitchell's dramatic story lives on the screen. It contains undoubtedly the most beautiful and breathtaking, technicolor photography conceivable.

Clark Gable is naturally, a perfect Rhett Butler. That much was to be expected and it's the greatest acting job he's ever done. Vivien Leigh is wholly Scarlett. She is the greatest find in a decade, definitely and overnight star. Leslie Howard is outstanding and Olivia de Havilland surpasses anything she's ever done. These are the stars; for the others, one phrase will cover their performance—ideal casting and brilliant acting. Among the featured players who shine brilliantly are Thomas Mitchell, Hattie McDaniel, Barbara O'Neill, Osa Munson, Laura Hope Crews, Carroll Nye, Harry Davenport, Alicia Rhett, Rand Brooks, Evelyn Keyes, Ann Rutherford, Butterfly McQueen, Oscar Polk, Victor Jory, Eddie Anderson, Fred Crane, George Reeves, Jane Darwell and Everett Brown.

"Young America" Film Is Based on 4-H Clubs

"To make the best better!" This is the motto of the 4-H clubs which is used not only in the building of character and citizenship but also in the raising of their project standards.

4-H club work for rural boys and girls is a part of the national agricultural extension system which reaches every state in the United States, Puerto Rico, and the territories of Alaska and Hawaii. It is being developed also among many of our Latin American neighbors. This system was organized by the United States Department of Agriculture in cooperation with the state colleges of agriculture and the county extension organizations under the provisions of the Smith-Lever Act of 1914 and other acts of Congress and the state legislatures authorizing the establishment of agricultural extension work and making appropriations for it.

The 4-H clubs, upon which the 20th Century-Fox film "Young America" the Jane Withers starring vehicle now at the Strand theater, is based usually are organized and conducted under the immediate supervision of county extension agents cooperatively employed by the Department of Agriculture, the state colleges of agriculture and county governments.

MADELINE GETS HER MAN

After all the hullabaloo he's been raising on his radio program about Madeleine Carroll being his favorite blonde it's hard to figure just why Bob Hope should play hard to get. But he does, and anybody can see his antic in "My Favorite Blonde," Paramount's laugh-laden spy comedy opening Saturday at the Strand theater.

may be seen in the thrilling stunts which Elliott and his co-star, Tex Ritter, are required to perform in Columbia's "Bullets for Bandits," now at the Embassy theater.

During the first day's work, they slugged and fought for six hours with a burly lot of outlaw characters until their clothes were torn to tatters. On another occasion, Elliott had to make a ten foot flying leap through the air and land with a jolt in the saddle of a moving horse. Other scenes required him to make a spectacular leap from the roof of a burning house.

"The first thing you learn in a western picture," Elliott explains "is

Cleveland Indians Stretch Winning Streak

Tribe's Six-Run Spree in Fourth Beats Athletics

American League Leaders Capture Tenth Straight Game, 11-6

By TED MEIER
PHILADELPHIA, April 29 (AP)—The red-hot Cleveland Indians stretched their winning streak to ten in a row today by coming from behind to beat the Athletics, 11 to 6.

The victory gave the first place Indians a two-game lead over the New York Yankees who lost again to the St. Louis Browns.

Roy Weatherly started the game by blasting a 3-2 pitch by Phil Marchiondo over the right field wall for a home, but it took a six-run upsurge in the fourth to sew up the contest.

The six-run outburst came after the A's had fashioned a 3-1 lead in the second on four consecutive hits by Elmer Vaino, Pete Stader, Marchiondo and Mike Kreevich.

Les Fleming started with a single to left. Then Marchiondo walked Lou Boudreau, Ray Mack and Gene DeSautele, forcing home Fleming. Al Milnar brought home Boudreau with an outfield fly. Weatherly doubled to center, scoring Mack and DeSautele. Kris Hockett's pop fly fell for a Texas league single. Kenny Keltner sent Marchiondo to the showers by singling to center, scoring Weatherly and Hockett. Jeff Heath greeted Fred Caligiuri with a single, but Fleming and Boudreau were infield outs.

The A's knocked Milnar out of the box in the fourth, but Joe Heving came in to pitch excellent relief ball, giving up only two runs in the eighth on Suder's homer, Bill Beckman's double and Bill Knickerbocker's single. The box score:

The Duffer's Requiem
(With a nod to R. L. S.)
Under the wide and starry sky
Dig the grave and let me lie.
Gladly I've lived and gladly die.
Far from this world of strife.

These be the lines you gave for me.
Here he lies where he wants to be.
Here he lies by the nineteenth century.
Where he's lied all through his life.

Everybody's Ball Player
Someone called Dick Bartell, now with the New York Giants, "a ball player's ball player." The irrepressible Bartell is something more than that. He is "everybody's ball player."

Born thirty-five years ago in Chicago, now in his sixteenth big league season, Bartell is still traveling at his top speed, as full of flame and smoke as he was ten years ago. If all ball players hustled up to the Bartell standard the game would pick up a much faster pace.

They've moved him around from Pittsburgh to Philadelphia to New York to Chicago to Detroit and back to New York again in this sixteen-year pilgrimage, but they haven't removed any of the old pep that packs his 148-pound system.

The veteran Giant still spells aggressive with a capital A.

The Bartell Angle
It's all quite simple when you talk to Bartell.

"I happen to love baseball," he says, "and I like to hustle. Once in a while I find the old legs are not what they used to be, but a short rest always takes care of that. It's the legs that get you, not the batting eye. Last year in my fifteenth season I still batted .303 in 104 games, a few points above my all-time average. I hope to beat .300 again this season with any luck."

"The toughest part in baseball is to keep on hustling when you're hitting, so the best answer to that is to make hitting a habit."

The Blackburn Top
You'll be hearing stories about Jack Blackburn for some time to come. It always struck me that his top feat as a fighter came from the seven battles he fought with Sam Lang

Night Baseball Ban Indicated in New York

Lights Could Be Seen Far at Sea, Police Head Says

Government Spokesman Attempts To Ease Fears of Magnates

NEW YORK, April 29. (AP)—New York moved tonight to ban night baseball and other illuminated sports for the duration of the war as a measure of coastal defense after the army turned enforcement of its new "dim-out" order over to local authorities without making an objection to night sports.

Police Commissioner Lewis J. Valentine of New York, indicating that all sports requiring artificial illumination would be prohibited here, declared the dim-out regulations "will affect baseball and other sports at night, since the lights can be seen above the horizon. That means they can be seen far out at sea."

Valentine's statement followed that of Major General Irving J. Phillips, commander of the Second Corps Area, who said:

"The enforcement of the regulation covering the dimming of lights in the coastal areas of the Second Corps Area were placed in the hands of the state and local authorities concerned for enforcement."

Earlier, however, an army spokesman had indicated that night baseball did not present a problem. He told the Associated Press that "all we are interested in at present is dimming shore lights so that there will be no bright phosphorescent glow against which a submarine can silhouette a ship."

But at Hackensack, N. J., Col. Walter W. Metcalfe, acting director of the Second Civilian Defense region, said the O.C.D. felt that a glow in the sky would be as helpful to enemy craft as a background of building lights.

Metcalfe pointed out, however, that the O.C.D. was acting only in an advisory capacity and that enforcement of the dim-out regulations would be up to local authorities, at least for the time being.

Spokesman Attempts To Soothe Magnates

NEW YORK, April 29. (AP)—There is almost no chance at all that night baseball games along the eastern seaboard will be affected by the army's new "dim-out" order, a government spokesman said today in easing the fears of the diamond magnates.

"We intend to go at this thing in a common sense way," he soothed. "And I don't believe that the illumination from the ball parks either here or in Philadelphia will obstruct what we hope to accomplish."

"All we are interested in at present is dimming shore lights so that there will be no bright phosphorescent glow against which a submarine can silhouette a ship. That, and seeing that there are no bright individual lights that would help an enemy craft orient itself."

"At the moment there is no thought of eliminating entirely the glow that rises over our cities. Such a glow becomes very dim a few miles at sea and cannot be used to silhouette objects. When it becomes necessary to blanket this glow it will be because of enemy planes, not surface ships, and when that time comes we will have a complete blackout, not a dim-out."

"In other words, let's not cry wolf until we learn if it really is a wolf. Within the next few weeks the baseball men probably will be asked to turn on their lights at night so we can get off and observe their effect on the sky, but we are making all sorts of tests like that. I don't think they have anything to worry about."

New York Race Tracks Will Aid War Effort

NEW YORK, April 29. (AP)—New York's five major race tracks have taken definite steps toward a substantial contribution to the war effort—perhaps as much as $500,000. Representatives of Jamaica, Aqueduct, Empire City, Belmont Park and Saratoga tracks voted unanimously that "each should give as war contribution the first $100,000 earned as profit and before payment of a dividend."

Joseph L. Cohn, public relations director for the five tracks, said a decision had been made as to the distribution of the money the tracks would contribute.

Wheeling Will Increase Purses for Spring Meet

WHEELING, W. Va., April 29.—Wheeling Downs today announced an increase in purse distribution for the spring meeting opening May 28, putting a total of $69,600 for winners during the twenty-eight-day meeting.

This is a new all time high for Wheeling Downs, eclipsing last fall's daily average when the purses were paid over the first meeting of 1941.

The announced increase is expected to attract a higher grade of thoroughbreds to the island track. Readily during the past five years the Downs has grown to where it is now higher in the turf world than ever before in its sixty-three-year history.

Oscar Leasure, of the Eiler Chevrolet team, who was high-average man for the 1941-42 Commercial League season, will receive a trophy at the loop's annual banquet tonight at 6:30 at Minke's Cottage Inn.

Leasure's mark was 153 for eighty-three games. He nosed out Frank Fogtman and B. Price, who tied for second with 152. "Red" Clites was fourth with 151 while Gerry Leasure, Emery Robertson and Leo Leasure tied for fifth with 148.

Lou Aldridge turned in high single game of 237 while Bill Lee had the top set of 565. Eiler Chevrolet, which won both halves of the split season, captured both team records with an 886 game and a 2,532 set.

The third annual open duckpin tournament at the Keyser (W. Va.) Sports Center has been called off, according to Manager Jim Briley, because of a lack of entries.

Diamond pinners rallied to take the third and final game by 137 sticks to top the Spades by two pins in the Club Ladies' League championship playoff match. The Spades won the first game by sixteen pins and took the second by 19. Helen Martin had 165-439 for the Spades while Margaret Kling topped the Diamonds with 412. The league will hold its annual banquet and dance tonight at the Clary Club.

Miss Ursula Hartman topped Savoy Ladies' League bowlers with an average of 130 for eighty-seven games. Miss Leona Robertson was second with 129 and holds the game and set records with 217 and 560.

The B. and O. Mixed League will celebrate the close of its 1941-42 season with a banquet and dance this evening at the Ali Ghan Shrine country club.

"Bub" Porter of the Central Methodist team, led City Church League bowlers with an average of 153 for eighty-one games this season. Paul Smith also had 153 but rolled in only forty-nine games.

Roy Athey was second with 147. John Hull third with 145 and Grover Slavin fourth with 144. Ellis Batdorf of Central Methodist turned in the high set, 577, and also took single-game honors with 258.

Redbirds tied score in ninth but lose ball game, 4 to 3.

ST. LOUIS, April 29. (AP)—The New York Giants survived a three-run rally that tied the score for the St. Louis Cardinals in the ninth inning today and bounced back with a run in the tenth to win 4 to 3.

For eight innings Carl Hubbell kept the Cards shut out while his teammates attacked Ernie White for a run in the fourth and two more in the seventh. Then Hubb weakened and in the ninth the Cards knocked him out with two doubles and a single for two runs. Then Estel Crabtree delivered a pinch double off Ace Adams to tie the score.

Bill Werber opened the tenth with a single off Bill Lohman, was sacrificed to second, took third on a wild pitch and after Clyde Shoun came to the mound, scored on a fielder's choice. The box score:

People Love To Spar with a Former Boxing Champ when He Is Off Guard

The United States is populated by people who try to make history with a sneak punch landed on an ex-champ who isn't looking. The census may relate a different story about that, but this is the truth as ex-champs find it out.

All Muscle-Minded
Usually ex-champs find it out when they open up restaurants for themselves. Patrons stoke themselves with the blue plate special and then try to butter the cauliflower in their general host's ears in order to take back some conversation for the home table. But Gene Tunney, who has always been the kind of fighter that is known as "different," found this out in Washington, according to a message from there.

Most of the history-makers of the United States, Benny Leonard said, "I regret to state do not have a punch worthy of the name. I do not know what they did with all the vitamins they paid for and got in the blue plate specials I used to feature when I was in business. They certainly did not put them into their muscles."

Mr. Leonard says he was never hit by a single vitamin after leaving the ring. After the one-punch history makers had done their stuff, Mr. Leonard would hand over his card and say, "You ought to eat here regularly. It will build up your strength. You do not hit hard enough now to give your wife a facial."

Gene Tunney's experience was more limited and a touch more catastrophic. The story is that he called on Vice President Wallace and Mr. Wallace offered to engage the ex-champ in a bit of middle-western muscle flexing known as hand wrestling. The ex-champ placed his hand trustingly in the grasp of the vice president and a stance. The next thing he knew he was one desk-length, a leather sofa, four chairs and a hat rack away from where he had last been.

Tunney Was Soft
This could never have happened if Tunney had not elected to secede from the United States when he quit the ring and join the beat. People, Directors of boards, patrons of the theater guild, fellows who put on boiled shirts to drink drinks, amateur sportsmen who carry $150 worth of blue serge as full-belied spinnakers when sailing to work and others of the best people are not the United States. They seldom try to make history with a sneak punch. So Tunney became soft and moved his eyes up from in back of his elbows and got down off his toes and now he wouldn't be better than an even steven against the supreme court.

When an ex-champ is in condition to handle the history-makers, he is very beautiful to watch. The fellows who crawl up behind him are met with a hearty handshake that leaves their knuckles moulded into a molten mass. An arm skillfully placed around the shoulders of a man at the bar seems genial and serves the further purpose of keeping history unmade while leaving the elbow free to bend. A friendly slap on the back dampens a history-maker's enthusiasm and may knock his neck out from under his head.

"The important thing is to keep in shape," Benny Leonard told us. He patted his punch and his 165 pounds quaked like glucous over his lightweight frame. "I mean in mental shape. You got to be on your mental toes when you are an ex-champ. Then you will not have any more trouble than you can handle."

Jack Dempsey shares this general opinion. Sometimes, however, one meets a history-maker against whom all techniques fail and then reasoning must be resorted to. There is, for example, the ambitious personality known as Cowboy Luttrell. The Cowboy thought he could get himself a reputation by knocking out Dempsey while Jack was busy refereeing. His reasoning proved to have a flaw in it, but the first time he was knocked out he argued that it was an accident. For several months, Luttrell described in vivid detail what he would do the next time he caught up with Jack Dempsey. He even described what Dempsey would do, laughing with scorn during this portion of his recital.

Luttrell caught up with Dempsey in Detroit. The meeting, we are told, was preceded by a conversation featuring a mutual exchange of confidences.

"I am the referee here tonight," Dempsey explained and began tapping up his hands as if for a fight. When he had put on enough tape to feel an ox, he smacked his right hand, name of Betsy-Ann, into his left hand, name of Iron Mike. "I am a confident I will not have trouble with a fine upstanding wrestler like you."

"Yes sir," the Cowboy replied, "you can have confidence in me." In that way, he remained unconfident for the balance of the evening.

Now, if L. Commander Tunney had just put on some tape before shaking hands with the vice president and moved his eyes up from in back of his elbows and got down off

Rookie Froilan Fernandez Gets Four Hits, Making Eight in Row

CHICAGO, April 29. (AP)—The Boston Braves, aided by a homer, a double and two singles by Froilan Fernandez, sensational rookie third baseman, overwhelmed the Chicago Cubs, 8 to 3, today to make it two straight over the Cubs and four in a row for the Boston team.

Fernandez gave the Chicago team a sample of his hitting yesterday when he doubled once and singled three times. Today he extended his hitting streak to eight in a row. The box score:

Golf Will Miss Snead, Who Quits To Join Colors

Bashful Hillbilly Virtually Put Game on the Gold Standard

By WHITNEY MARTIN

NEW YORK, April 29. (AP)—World News—Sam Snead is joining the navy, and Freddy Corcoran gets a hollow feeling in his stomach every time he thinks about it.

Not because Snead has been the P. G. A.'s No. 1 gate attraction the last five years and Corcoran's job as tournament manager is to line up attractive fields and tournaments so the pros can make more money. It goes deeper than that.

It's because there is an invisible tie between the two; a sentimental tie always present when two individuals start together as timid neophytes and whose careers are closely blended during the years of the climb to success.

For Snead, a bashful hillbilly, and Corcoran entered the P. G. A. picture at the same time. It was on the winter tour in 1937, and—well, let Corcoran tell it.

"Sam had come west virtually unknown," he says. "He had finished seventh in the Los Angeles open, but he was such a dark horse that papers spelled his name 'Snead'."

"The tour moved up to Oakland. I'd only been on the job about a week, and I went around introducing myself to the pros and asking them if they would attend a 7 o'clock breakfast arranged by a group there."

Snead Astounds Reporters
"I went down in the lobby at 6:30 the next morning and there stood one form figure. It was dark, and it was cold—snowing if I remember—but there stood Samuel Jackson Snead, who identified himself as a pro, and said he'd like to attend the breakfast."

"You know what happened at Oakland, Sam, whose first job paid him $45 a month, won the tournament with 271, and after getting over his fright due to the photographer's flash bulbs, something he'd never seen before, astounded the reporters by casually blurring out that 'once he shot a 61'."

"That was Snead's start on the big time. You know what he's done since. He's won $78,000 in P. G. A. purses alone in the last five years, and with exhibitions and things he's probably earned close to $200,000. He made $19,600 in 1938, the all-time high for a regular year. Gene Sarazen made more over a twelve-month period, but not from Jan. 1 to Jan. 1.

"He's never won the open, or the P. G. A. or the Masters, but he's the one golfer who can start a tournament with a 78, and still have his gallery the next day. He's the man the tournament committees wait.

Colorful Golf Figures
"He's just as simple—and I don't mean that belittlingly—as he was that chilly, dark morning he stood in the lobby at Oakland. He never complains or asks favors. You can start him at 7 a. m. in a tournament, and pair him with a caddyman, and it would be all right with him. Whether he's playing with his caddy as a gallery or with 5,000 fans trailing him makes no difference. He's just Sam Snead, playing his game without thought of publicity or personal glory."

"In the five years we've averaged $180,000 a year in purses, and Snead has done as much to keep up in the interest in the game as any other man. You could say truthfully that he's the fellow who put golf on the gold standard the last five years. He came along just at the right time with his skill and color, although if you told him he was colorful he wouldn't know what you were talking about."

So you can see that Corcoran isn't thinking about a possible shrinkage in future gates when he contemplates Sam's enlistment. He has a real affection for the quaint, almost childishly unaffected soul whose answer to the routine question as to why he wanted to join the navy gave a true picture of his candid nature.

"To help win the war," he answered simply.

WHEN TO CHANCE IT

A RUBBER bridge declarer does not dare endanger his contract by trying a play for an extra trick or tricks which, if it fails, can cause the defeat of the contract. In a match point duplicate, however, it is up to the declarer in the same contract ordinarily to attempt any device for extra tricks which is a bit more likely to succeed than to fail. This would cause more fancy plays in duplicate than in rubber bridge were it not for the fact that sometimes a rubber declarer must strain with even a very unlikely play to make his contract.

West North East South

1 4 3 NT

In a rubber game among fine players, West took only nine tricks on this deal after the diamond 7 was led to the A. Being obliged to try the club finesse as his only chance to build a ninth trick, he sent the club Q through. Of course, if South won this, a lead through the heart K could cause trouble if North had the A. But that risk was necessary. He then played safely leading to the club A, running the spades and taking the diamond K for his ninth trick, after which South got the rest of them with the heart A and three diamonds.

Noting that there was a pretty squeeze play in the hand for thirteen tricks, we arranged to have it put into one of the boards for a match point duplicate among fine players. As we hoped, two of them got into the 3-No Trumps and made 7. After the diamond 7 went to the A, and the club Q scored the spades were run, the club 10 finessed, the A used to drop the K, and the next two clubs gathered in. When the last was led declarer held the diamond K-2 and the heart K. South had the heart A and the diamond Q-J, the dummy two diamonds in addition to the squeezing club. If South had discarded the heart A, West would have thrown the diamond 2 and scored the two red kings. But South tossed the diamond J, whereupon the heart K was discarded, and two diamonds completed the hand.

Kopp Announces Plans To Register School Beginners

Instructions for Enrollment May 7 and 8 Sent to Principals

Instructions for the spring registration of pre-school children who will enter school in September were announced yesterday by Charles L. Kopp, superintendent of Allegheny county public schools, in letters forwarded to principals.

The registration will be held May 7 and 8 between the hours of 3:30 and 5 p. m.

Kopp stressed the importance of principals making a complete canvass of their districts in an effort to enroll 100 per cent of the pre-school children.

The county superintendent also emphasized the opportunity that principals and teachers will have at this registration period to extend a warm and courteous welcome to the parents and to the children who will visit the schools during these days, thus taking the first step in setting up a desirable relationship between the home and the school.

Attention is called to the regulation governing entrance age, children whose sixth birthday falls in January 1, 1943, or earlier, being eligible for enrollment in September.

The letters were accompanied by enrollment forms which must be returned to the superintendent's office in duplicate immediately after the close of registration.

If additional children move into the community after the registration dates who fall under the classification of registration, these should be reported to the superintendent's office.

J. R. Lashbaugh Dies of Injuries

Mt. Savage Man Succumbs as Result of Accident Monday Night

Injuries suffered when he was hurt in a railroad accident at the Washington street bridge Monday night proved fatal in Memorial hospital early yesterday morning to Joseph Roy Lashbaugh, 29, Mt. Savage.

Lashbaugh, police said, had hopped a ride on a westbound Baltimore and Ohio freight train. He was standing on the tender when his head was struck by the substructure of the Washington street bridge as the train passed beneath it.

Lashbaugh was removed to the hospital where he was treated for a fracture at the base of his skull and a compound fracture of his left shoulder. He did not regain consciousness before he died at 12:45 o'clock yesterday morning.

Just before Lashbaugh was struck, a member of the engine crew shouted to him but he apparently failed to hear the warning. He was knocked from his feet by the blow but did not roll off the tender.

A son of Mr. and Mrs. Harmon Lashbaugh, he is survived by his parents, his wife, Mrs. Nellie Lashbaugh, three children, Joseph Roy, Jr., Carol Ann and Wanda Lee, all at home; two brothers, William and Walter Lashbaugh, both Mt. Savage; and one sister, Mrs. Flossie Bloom, at home.

Funeral services will be held Saturday at the Mt. Savage Methodist church with interment in the church cemetery. The body will be taken to this late home this morning from the Lemperer residence.

Collier Rites Held

Funeral services for Mrs. H. E. Collier, Flintstone, were conducted at her home yesterday with the Rev. A. H. Robinson and the Rev. A. Odell Osteen officiating.

Interment was in Zion Memorial park.

Flower bearers were Mrs. Guy Flinstone, Misses Eva Evans, Katherine Kobb, Hazel Fisher, Verna Mallow, Genevieve McKenzie, Olive Alhey, N. Thompson and Doris Shiber.

Palbearers were Clay Wilson, Ralph Wilson, Brady Dolly, Carl Wilson, Marshall Wilson and Martin Garden.

Registration for Gasoline Will Be Handled by County School Teachers

Instructors Assigned Fourth Job as Registrars Since First Draft

Schoolteachers have already served as registrars for the draft and for civilian defense. They are now registering trade sugar dealers and from May 4 to 7 they will register individual sugar consumers.

Announcement that schoolteachers would be asked to register the gasoline users was made by John W. Studebaker, United States Commissioner of Education.

Studebaker has communicated with the Maryland State Superintendent of Education and has asked city and county school superintendents to designate responsible school officials in elementary and high schools who will direct the registration work. They have also been asked to recruit and train volunteers for the program.

State officials announced that approximately the same staffs used to register persons for the sugar ration program would be used for the gasoline registration.

Cumberland Council No. 586 To Have First Degree and Luncheon

Cumberland Council No. 586, Knights of Columbus, will celebrate the sixtieth anniversary of the order Sunday, May 3, with the conferring of the First Degree on applicants from Cumberland, Mt. Savage, Frostburg, and Oakland councils.

Joseph G. Loeffler, state deputy of Maryland, and Edward J. Conway, district deputy of Western Maryland, will be guests of honor at the ceremonies. The officers and members of the visiting councils will be guests at a buffet luncheon which will follow exemplification of the degree work.

The committee in charge of the event is headed by Oliver H. Bruce, Jr., chairman; P. H. Barley, Joseph A. Coleman, Hugh J. Kilroy, Frank J. Davis, Lawrence J. Moore, John D. Aaron, Frank Kastner, and George F. McDermott. The degree will start at 4:30 p. m. and will be followed by the luncheon at 6 p. m.

Trial of Gellners Set for Tomorrow

Balky Draftee and Father Removed to Baltimore for Hearings

William M. Gellner, 62, and his son, John Albert Gellner, 29, will be tried tomorrow in United States district court at Baltimore. It was announced yesterday by Deputy United States Marshal Howard P. Loughrie.

The elder Gellner is charged with resisting federal officers who were attempting to take his son into custody for failure to report for induction into the army under the Selective Service act, while young Gellner is accused of failure to report for military duty.

The pair was removed to the Baltimore city jail from the Allegheny county jail here yesterday by Loughrie. They had been held in jail since the middle of last month in default of $10,000 bond.

The marshal took Catesby ApJones, of Washington, D. C., to Fairmont, W. Va., Tuesday to await federal court action on a charge of impersonating a federal officer or employe. ApJones was arrested here last week on a pick-up broadcast by Parkersburg, W. Va., police, where ApJones allegedly cashed several bad checks by posing as a United States government engineer.

Mrs. R. R. Henderson To Broadcast Today

Mrs. Robert R. Henderson, chairman of the Women's committee which will conduct next week's pledge campaign for the purchase of war savings bonds and stamps, will be heard in a radio broadcast over WTBO at 12:15 p. m. today, according to Forrest Brown, general chairman of the pledge campaign committee.

Judge William A. Huster made a broadcast plea last night in behalf of the drive.

Two Births Reported At Hospitals Here

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Senter, Frost avenue, Frostburg, announce the birth of a son yesterday afternoon at Memorial hospital.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Wood Simpson, Route 3, yesterday morning at Memorial hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Jay Shirk, 202 Maryland avenue, announce the birth of a son yesterday afternoon at Allegheny hospital.

A son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Harry Thomas, 508 Decatur street, last night at Allegheny hospital.

LaSalle Skating Party Will Be Held Tonight

Proceeds Will Be Used To Purchase Electric Scoreboard and Pads

A skating party, with the proceeds to be used for the purchase of an electric basketball score board and wall pads for the prevention of injuries in the SS. Peter and Paul gymnasium, will be held tonight at the Crystal park roller rink from 8 until 12 o'clock.

The party, the second to be held within a few weeks, is sponsored by a group of LaSalle high school fans. Five hundred skaters attended the party held several weeks ago and an equally large crowd is expected tonight. It will be the final LaSalle social event of the present school year.

Johnstown Fans Expected
In addition to students of city schools and nearby towns, LaSalle fans from Johnstown, Pa., also are expected to attend.

Johnny Miller, playing the electric organ, will dedicate special numbers to all persons who have submitted requests by mail to the Skating Party committee of LaSalle high school before this evening.

A pair of roller skates will be given as a prize and souvenir programs bearing the names of patrons and contributors will be given to all those who attend.

A special event has been planned for older persons.

Ticket Committees Listed
Class ticket committees of LaSalle follow:

SENIORS—Thomas Lippold, William Boyland, Terence Carolan and Eugene Natale.

JUNIORS—Thomas McGeady, William LaNeve, George Lindner and William Hunt.

SOPHOMORES—Charles Steiner, Earl Conn and Robert Daugherty.

FRESHMEN—Leo Brannon, Edward Gunning, Gilbert Lancaster, James Boyle, Joseph Becker, Aloysius Martin, William Seefield, Charles Laing, Edward Collins and Michael Lindner.

The transportation committee has arranged for buses to leave LaSalle high school at 7:15 o'clock for Crystal park.

Glare at Firemen
The night after the pigeons had discovered their unexpected meal, Brennan said, they came back, glared at the firemen, walked up and down the plaza and glared some more, as if to demand, "Well, how about some more peanuts? Whaddya think we're doing here anyway?"

That brought results so one fireman was dispatched to a nearby store to buy some nuts for the birds. That continued for several nights before the firemen realized their feed bill was running into money.

Pigeons Receive Free Meals Daily At Central Fire Station Here

Birds Have Been Coming There Regularly for Last Seven Years

This is the story of the city plaza pigeons who, although their number has decreased, haven't missed a meal in about seven years. And it all started from a couple of leftover peanuts.

John E. Brennan, assistant fire chief, was telling the story recently about how four or five hungry pigeons happened onto the peanuts firemen at Central fire station had tossed away because "they'll spoil our supper."

Returned Every Evening
The birds kept returning every evening about the same time—5 o'clock—and when they continued to be fed started bringing friends along to enjoy the feast. The number of dinner guests grew, Brennan said, until finally about sixty-five pigeons were appearing daily.

Then came the Centre street explosion and since then the number of callers has fallen off considerably until only about fifteen or twenty put in a regular appearance at meal time.

The explosion is one explanation firemen advance for the birds vanishing but two other reasons frequently are presented when the pigeons come up for discussion.

About the same time the explosion occurred, the front of the fire house was being remodeled. A heavy tarpaulin was stretched across the entrance to keep out the cold and when the wind blew the tarpaulin would rattle and groan and slap against the building. "The strange noise at the usually peaceful entrance to the building might have frightened the birds away."

Another reason firemen point to as a possible explanation for the disappearance of a majority of the pigeons also is related to the remodeling of the fire house. The new overhead doors that were installed make a clattering noise when they are raised or lowered. That scared the pigeons, some of the men say, and now they won't come back, regardless of the feeding inducement.

Five Companies Of 'Minute Men' Are Organized

State Guard Officers Outline Duties to Reserve Militia

Five companies of the Maryland "Minute Men" were organized last night at the state armory when Capt. Thomas F. Conlon and Richard P. Shireman, commanders of the two local state guard units, outlined the duties of the men and gave brief instructions.

About sixty men attended last night's organizational meeting and Capt. Conlon announced that another meeting would be held next Monday night and he hopes for at least 100 of those who signed up for the "Minute Men" will show up.

The five companies have been assigned to the following sections of Cumberland and outlying areas. Company No. 1 will have all of West Side; Company No. 2 will have South Cumberland from Williams street to the city limits; Company No. 3 will have that section between Bedford and Williams street on the east side of Wills creek and to the city limits; Company No. 4 will have the North Cumberland areas east of Wills creek and above Bedford street; Company No. 5 will be assigned to the LaVale and Cresaptown suburban section.

Jaycee Convention Committees Named

Nominating and Resolutions Committees Appointed by Ralph Race

With Western Maryland well represented, the personnel of two important committees to function at the first annual convention of the Maryland Junior Chamber of Commerce here this weekend was announced yesterday by Ralph M. Race, of Frostburg, state president.

Philip H. Rault, of Hancock, was named chairman of the Nominating committee, and other members are Ray Jones, Oakland; Walter E. Mackay, Frostburg; L. Leslie Helmer, Cumberland; Hugh George Hagerstown; G. Max Armor, Frederick; Robert H. Swindell, Baltimore; Robert Bell, Bethesda; and Richard Munford, Salisbury.

Headed by G. Van Velsor Wolf, of Baltimore, the Resolutions committee consists of Raymond L. Layman, of Frostburg, and G. Horton Peace of Frederick.

Registration will start tomorrow, and the first event on the program will be an informal get-together and dance at the Clary Club tomorrow night. The opening business session Saturday morning will be held at the Elks club auditorium, while the afternoon meeting will be held at the Algonquin hotel, following a luncheon.

A golf tournament in the afternoon and a dinner-dance at the Cumberland Country Club will conclude the opening day program. The final business session will be held Sunday morning at the Algonquin.

J. L. Towler is chairman of the Convention committee.

Western Maryland Amateur Radio Club Moves to Armory

The Western Maryland Amateur Radio Club yesterday moved its equipment from the second floor of the Public Safety building to the state armory, South Centre street.

Classes in Morse code will be conducted in the new headquarters of the club.

The change to the armory was necessitated when the mayor and council decided to transfer the offices of the Associated Charities to the Public Safety building.

Industrial Accident Commission Will Hear 20 Cases in Two Days

The Maryland State Industrial Accident Commission will conduct hearings today and tomorrow in the city hall.

Dr. Thomas W. Koon, former mayor of Cumberland, and a member of the commission, will preside.

Approximately twenty cases will be heard during the two-day sessions which will start at 10 a. m. today.

Apprehend Men Who Fled from Road Gang

Two men who escaped Monday from a West Virginia road gang at Keyser were apprehended yesterday morning in a local bus terminal by Officer J. E. Sherry.

Identified at police headquarters as Chester Colegrove and Ed Kole, Romney, W. Va., the men were released yesterday afternoon to Cecil Cozart, guard in charge of the road gang from which they escaped.

Sherry said the men had purchased tickets to Hagerstown and evidently were waiting for the next bus when he arrested them at 9:30 a. m.

A "pick-up" order had been posted for the men and Sherry said he recognized them from the descriptions.

HEADS WPA — Francis H. Dryden, 51, a native of Pocomoke City, Md., has been designated acting national director for the Federal Works Projects Administration by Howard O. Hunter, who has resigned as WPA commissioner.

Hunter's resignation becomes effective tomorrow. His permanent successor must be nominated by President Roosevelt and confirmed by the Senate. Dryden has been deputy commissioner for the WPA for the past five years. He was former chief engineer of the CWA, grandfather of the WPA, and was Maryland administrator of the WPA prior to being promoted to Washington.

Farmers To Vote On Wheat Quotas

Allegany County Balloting in National Referendum Slated May 2

Wheat farmers of Allegany county will participate Saturday in another nation-wide referendum on wheat marketing quotas for 1942, according to an announcement by County Farm Agent Ralph F. McHenry.

McHenry said that all farmers raising fifteen acres or more of wheat are eligible to vote in the referendum. The polling place will be in McHenry's office in the court house, and will be open from 9 a. m. until 5 p. m.

To become effective, the proposed marketing quotas must be approved by seventy-five per cent of the nation's wheat-growers. The proposed quota system would impose a penalty tax for over-production of wheat.

Allegany county farmers voted against the measure last year, but they were in a minority nationally, and the system was in effect for 1941.

Criminal Appeals Heard by Court

The criminal docket for the April term of circuit court was nearly cleaned yesterday as several appeal cases were disposed of.

Earl Patton was found guilty by a jury of desertion and non-support of his wife and child, but sentence was not immediately passed by Associate Judge William A. Huster. Patton had been given a suspended one-year sentence in the House of Correction by Juvenile Magistrate Elizabeth R. Menefee. He was represented by Edward J. Ryan, attorney.

Judge Huster also disposed of several other cases appealed from juvenile court, with most of the appellants pleading guilty.

Frank Miller, who had appealed a one-year House of Correction sentence imposed by Magistrate Thomas E. Stakem for drunkenness and disorderly conduct, failed to appear for his appeal hearing, and his conviction and sentence were affirmed.

Sentenced to six months in the House of Correction for drunkenness and disorderly conduct, Michael McGreevy won a reduction to thirty days in the county jail after pleading guilty to the charge.

Eugene F. Reid and Ralph Whorton entered guilty pleas to charges of drunken driving, and $100 fines imposed in the lower court were affirmed and ordered paid by the July term of court.

Committee To Meet

Cumberland's War Appeals committee will meet at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow night in the Liberty Trust building, according to John M. McAlpine, chairman.

Height and Weight Requirements Bar Four from Police-Fire Tests

Rejection of four applicants for the examination for positions in the Cumberland police and fire departments, scheduled this evening at 7 o'clock in Fort Hill high school, was announced last evening by the Board of Civil Service Commissioners of the City of Cumberland.

Jesse W. Korns, a member of the board, said that the four men were turned down because they were unable to meet the height or weight requirements as specified by law.

Applicants for the Police department must be at least five feet, to the board.

Thirteen men will take the examination tonight—six for the Fire department and seven for the Police department.

In addition three men have been registered to retain their places on the Fire department eligible list and a like number have re-registered for the Police department.

The examinations will be conducted by the board comprising C. Philip Jolley, chairman, H. Clifford Spiker and Korns. Samuel F. Grimmer, city clerk, is secretary to the board.

LaVale Sponsors Third Cub Pack In Scout Council

P-TA Fosters Organization Comprising 50 Adults and Children

With a personnel of fifty adults and children, the formation of Cub Pack has been perfected by LaVale under the sponsorship of the LaVale Parent-Teacher Association, and regular meetings are being held in the hall of the LaVale Volunteer Fire Company.

The cub pack is the third organized in Potomac Council, 1, Scouts of America, according to Ray C. Lazor, scout executive.

The organization is headed by H. A. Smith, cubmaster; W. J. Anderson and Harry K. Cond, assistant cubmasters; Alvin Storey, chairman; J. H. G. DeCott and Paul Campbell, pack committee.

Six dens in the pack comprise the following personnel:

Den No. 1—Mrs. Alvin B. Storey, den mother; Dennis Perring, den chief; Wilbur Ruel, John DeCott, George Clise, Charles Nash, William Fisher and Alvin Storey, cubs.

Den No. 2—Mrs. Adam Burkett, den mother; Paul Goldsworthy, den chief; William Malampy, Charles Snow, James Goldsworthy, Gerald Campbell, Jack Burkett and Leo Kline, cubs.

Allegany-Garrett Fire Association Holds Smoker

Ronald B. Duke Is Guest of Honor at Twelfth Annual Social

Ronald B. Duke, Leonardtown, president of the Maryland State Firemen's Association, was the guest of honor at the twelfth annual smoker of the Allegany-Garrett County Firemen's Association held last night in Frostburg Firemen's hall.

During the business meeting, presided over by Elmer S. Kight, state official, a recommendation to have one fireman from each county take the examination for regional deputy fire warden, was considered.

The men who will take the examination will be appointed later by John B. Gontum, state insurance commissioner, if action to be taken by the executive committee at the next meeting, is favorable.

Following the business meeting a social hour was held and entertainment was provided in the form of amateur boxing bouts, acrobatic dancing by the Chambers brothers, and a humorous skit by William Heart, monologue artist. Music was furnished by Bill Eberly's orchestra.

Attending the smoker were representatives from Frostburg, Conningville, Mt. Savage, Cresaptown, Shaft, Bowman's Addition, McCool, Lonaconing, Midland, Barton, Westport, Luke and Cumberland's two volunteer fire companies, of Allegheny county and Oakland, Grantsville, and Friendsville, of Garrett county.

The program of entertainment was arranged by Woodrow Layman, president of the Frostburg Volunteer Fire Department.
